No. 10.

An Ordinance to provide for a general Account to be kept by the Register with the City Collector, in relation to all Taxes levied by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore.

Appeal tax court to furnish a statement of assessed value of property, to the Register.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted and ordained by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, That on the first Monday of March in each and every year, or as soon thereafter as the ordinances for levying all the taxes of the city for the current year shall have been passed, it shall be the duty of the appeal tax court to render to the Register in writing, the whole amount of assessable property on which said taxes have been levied; and it shall be the duty of the Register to charge the city collector in a general account, to be opened by him for that purpose, with the full amount of taxes levied.

City collector to be charged with amount of levy.

SEC. 2. And be it enacted and ordained, That it shall be the duty of the appeal tax court to make a detailed written statement to the Register, on or before the third Monday in February in each and every year, shewing the amounts of the additional assessments made by them on which taxes have been levied for the preceeding year, and the Register shall thereupon charge the city collector in said general account, with the amount of taxes levied on said additional assessments.

SEC. 3. And be it enacted and ordained, That it shall be the duty of the Register to place to the credit of the city collector in said general account, all such sums of money as may have been collected and paid by him on account of said taxes so levied, and with the sum of all discounts, which may have been allowed by the city collector for prompt payment of taxes in accordance with the ordinance allowing deductions.

Appeal tax court to give a statement of abatement.

SEC. 4. And be it enacted and ordained, That it shall be the duty of the appeal tax court to make a detailed written report to the Mayor, on or before the third Monday in February in each and every year, shewing the amount of assessable property abated during the preceeding year, the names of the persons to whom abatements have been allowed, and the amount which is to be placed to the credit of the city collector for said abatements, the said report when approved by the Mayor, shall be filed in the office of the Register, who shall thereupon credit in said general account, the city collector for the preceeding year, with the amount of abatements so ascertained by the appeal tax court.

City collector to make report of unpaid taxes.

SEC. 5. And be it enacted and ordained, That it shall be the duty of the city collector to make a detailed written report of all the ordinary city taxes due and unpaid on the first Monday of March in each and every year, on all the levies of the preceeding year, with the names of the debtors, and of the unknown debtors, with the sum due by each debtor; the whole amount of said dues when so stated to be given to the Register, whose duty it shall be to place the amount thereof to the credit of the city collector for the preceeding year, in said general account—all which said credits will then close the said general account for the preceeding year, as directed to be charged to the city collector to the Register, in the first and second sections of this ordinance. Register to credit collector.

SEC. 6. And be it enacted and ordained, That it shall be the duty of the Register to charge the city collector in a new general account, with the said amount of taxes due and unpaid on the first day of March, on all the ordinary taxes of the preceeding year, as soon as the report of the city collector is made to the Register as directed in the fifth section of this ordinance; and in said new general account, the Register is to charge the city collector with all the taxes levied for the current year, as directed to be charged to the city collector in the first section of this ordinance.

SEC. 7. And be it enacted and ordained, That it shall be the duty of the city commissioners, whenever they shall have contracted for the paying or repaving of any of the streets, lanes and alley of the city, under and by virtue of the ordinance of the Mayor and City Council, and have assessed the cost of the same, to return in writing to the Register, the amount of said assessment, with the name of the street, lane and alley so assessed; and it shall also be the duty of said commissioners, to return in writing to the Register, the amount of assessment of all new pumps which they may from time to time have made and sunk in the city; and it shall be the duty of the Register thereupon to charge the city collector the amount of said assessments of paving, repaving and pump taxes, in accounts to be opened by him for that purpose; and it shall be the further duty of said Register, to credit said collector on said accounts, for all money and payments he may receive from time to time from said collector, on account of said paving, repaving, and pump taxes and assessments. City commissioners to return statement of contracts for paving and repaving, &c.

No. 12.

An Ordinance relating to the Public Schools.

Appointment of commissioners of public schools.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted and ordained by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, That fourteen persons, to be called the board of Commissioners of Public Schools, shall be appointed by the two branches of the city council in convention, in the month of January, in each and every year—one commissioner to be selected from each of the several wards of the city—and said commissioners shall continue in office for one year, and from the end of that time until a new board shall have been appointed.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted and ordained, That said commissioners shall be convened by the Mayor within ten days next succeeding their appointment; and at their first meeting, or at some subsequent meeting held by special adjournment, they shall proceed to the election of a president from their own board, to be chosen by a majority of the votes of the whole body: and said president shall hold his office during the period prescribed by the first section of this ordinance. If a vacancy shall occur in the office of president, from death, resignation, or legal disability, it shall be the duty of the board to fill the same by a new election, as soon as can be conveniently done; and in all cases any eight of the commissioners shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business.

Treasurer and secretary
elected.

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted and ordained, That at the same time, and in the same manner as is prescribed in the second section of this ordinance for the election of a president, said commissioners shall elect a treasurer and a secretary, and assign the duties to be performed by them, and shall fix the salary of each at such a sum as said commissioners may deem equivalent to the services required. The tenure of office of said treasurer and secretary, and the mode of filling a vacancy or vacancies, should such occur, from death, resignation, removal, or legal disability, shall be the same as is provided for in the second section of this ordinance in relation to the president of the board. The treasurer shall be chosen from the board of school commissioners. Duties prescribed.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted and ordained, That whenever a vacancy or vacancies shall occur in the board of school commissioners, during the sessions of the city council, it shall be the duty of the president of the board to inform the Mayor of such vacancy or vacancies, who shall communicate the same to the First and Second Branches of the City Council, who shall proceed to form a convention according to their respective rules, to fill said vacancy or vacancies. If a vacancy or vacancies shall occur during the recess of the sessions of the city council by death, resignation, or otherwise, it shall be the duty of the board to fill the same as soon as may be convenient. Vacancies filled.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted and ordained, That the treasurer shall, before he enters on the duties of his office, give bond to the corporation, with securities to be approved by the Mayor and Register, in the penal sum of five thousand dollars, conditioned for the true and faithful performance of the trust reposed in him, and of the duties required of him by the school commissioners, acts of assembly, or ordinances of the city, passed or to be passed, in relation to the public schools; and the bond shall be deposited with the Register, for safe keeping. Treasurer to bond.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted and ordained, That said board of school commissioners shall have charge of the public schools of the city of Baltimore now in operation, and of all such as may be in operation during their continuance in office; and it shall be their duty to employ teachers and determine their salaries; to prescribe the courses of study, and the books to be used; to make all such by-laws for their own government, and all such rules and regulations for the management of the schools, as they may deem to be expedient, and to modify and repeal the same at their pleasure—provided, that such by-laws, rules and regulations, so made or modified, be not inconsistent with the laws of the State, or with the ordinances of the city. Duties of commissioners prescribed.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted and ordained, That it shall not be lawful for said school commissioners to purchase any property, erect any building, or rent or lease any property for a longer term than one year, without having first obtained the sanction of the Mayor and City Council.

SEC. 8. And be it further enacted and ordained, That it shall be the duty of the commissioners to furnish all necessary books and stationery for the pupils of the several schools, and in general whatever fuel or other supplies the schools may require, the same to be paid for from the public school fund; and each pupil shall pay in advance one dollar per quarter on entering a school, and the same advance payment for each subsequent quarter during his or her continuance in the school, unless exempted therefrom by the board; and no pupil above the age of fourteen years shall be admitted unless by special permission of the board.

SEC. 9. And be it further enacted and ordained, That the draft of the president of the board of school commissioners, countersigned by the Mayor, shall be sufficient authority for the Register of the city to pay any sum that may be standing in the treasury of the city, to the credit of the public school fund.

Commissioners to receive bequests.

SEC. 10. And be it further enacted and ordained, That said commissioners are hereby authorised to receive all devises, bequests and donations which may be made for the benefit of said public schools; and shall pay the same over to the Register of the city, to be applied under their direction, with the sanction of the Mayor and City Council, agreeably to the conditions which may be prescribed.

Register's
duty.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted and ordained, That the Register of the city shall demand and receive from time to time, from the treasurer of the Western Shore of Maryland, from the commissioners of finance, and from the collector of the city, all such sum or sums of money as may be in their hands for the support of the public schools of the city of Baltimore; and he shall place the same to the credit of the public school fund.

Commissioners may rent
portions of Assembly
Rooms, &c.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted and ordained, That the cellar and saloon of the building known by the name of Assembly Rooms, shall be under the direction of said school commissioners, and may be rented by them for the benefit of the public schools, until such time as the high school or other public schools may require their use; provided, that the cellar shall not be rented to any person or persons for the purpose of selling oysters or liquors.

Commissioners to report
annually.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted and ordained, That it shall be the duty of the board of school commissioners, to report, on the first Monday of January in each and every year, to the Mayor and City Council, a statement of its transactions with an account of the receipts and expenditures of the past year; and an estimate of the expenditures and resources for the year then commenced.

Repeal of former ordinances.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted and ordained, That all ordinances and resolutions heretofore passed in relation to the public schools, except an ordinance passed during the present session, entitled "An ordinance to provide for the payment of the expenses of the public schools, to provide for the purchase of apparatus for the male high school," be and the same are hereby repealed.

Approved March 27, 1845.

JACOB G. DAVIES, Mayor.

Protest against the passage, by the legislature, of the stamp act.

30. WHEREAS, it appears from the journal of the House of Delegates of Maryland, that body has recently reconsidered and passed an act known as the stamp act, after striking out the second section which made it of a general character, and retaining those portions of said act which bear heavily and almost exclusively upon the city of Baltimore; and whereas the enactment of this law, in the opinion of the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, would be highly oppressive and injurious to the interests of our city, and would be a violation of the plain provisions of the bill of rights, which declares that the burdens of the State shall be equally distributed and borne by all the inhabitants of the State,—Therefore,

Resolved by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, That the passage of the act now before the Senate, known as the Stamp Act, would be highly oppressive, unjust and injurious to the city of Baltimore, is in violation of the bill of rights of the state; and will if passed, be productive of evils which the legislature can neither remedy or remove.

Resolved, That the Mayor be requested to send a copy of this resolution to our senator in the state legislature, with directions to present the same to the consideration of that body immediately.

109. WHEREAS, memorials have been presented to the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, by divers banks of the city, commonly called the old banks, in behalf of themselves and their stockholders, praying that certain taxes paid by them and their stockholders, on the stock of said banks, under the act of 1841, chapter 23, and the ordinances of this city, may be refunded, on the ground that the imposition of said taxes was unconstitutional and void, and so decided to be by the Supreme Court of the United States; and whereas, it is the opinion of this Council that said decision does not establish the right of said banks or their stockholders to recover said taxes, so far as the same have been imposed by this city: and whereas, without further action on the part of the Mayor and City Council, it is probable that the stockholders of said banks by whom the said taxes have been paid, will bring separate and numerous suits or warrants against the authorities of this city, to the great expense and inconvenience of all parties; therefore,

Be it resolved by the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, Counsellor to docket a suit, by consent.
That the counsellor of this city be, and he is hereby authorised and directed to docket a suit by consent, or suits, if in his opinion more than one will be necessary to settle all the questions between the parties, with any one of the said banks, or with any one or more of the said stockholders of said banks, who may desire to institute legal proceedings to recover the sum paid by them or him, under the law and ordinances aforesaid.

2nd. And be it further resolved, That in case of those of the said banks, or of the stockholders who have paid the said tax, but refrain from instituting suits to recover back the same, that nevertheless, the amounts of the said tax shall be refunded to them, if in the case or cases so as above to be instituted, it shall be determined by the court of appeals that the said tax was illegally imposed upon and collected from said stockholders or banks, and also that the right to recover the same exists in said stockholders or banks.

3d. And be it further resolved, That nothing contained in the foregoing preamble and resolutions, shall be construed to debar the counsellor of the city of availing himself of any and every defence in behalf of the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, in said case or cases to be docketed as aforesaid, that he would have had in any case, instituted without consent to recover said taxes by the stockholders of said banks as mentioned aforesaid.

Mayor authorized to employ additional counsel.

CHAPTER 34.

An Act to regulate and establish a Standard for the Measurement of Dried Fruit hereafter sold in this State. Passed Jan. 27, 1845.

WHEREAS, great inconvenience has been experienced by sellers and purchasers of dried fruit, in consequence of no standard being fixed by the law for uniform measurement in the sale thereof; AND WHEREAS, a difference of opinion necessarily exists between seller and purchaser, whether or not there should be a rise or heap in the measurement thereof—Therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That all measures of dried fruit hereafter used in the future sale of said fruit, within the limits of this state, shall be fixed and uniform, and regulated and tried by the standard measure of the state, and the measure to be filled even and full, without rise or heap, and the fruit not packed or pressed in the measurement thereof. Preamble. Measures to be uniform.

Fine, &c.

SEC 2. And be it enacted, That for every violation or infraction of this law, the offender shall be subject to a fine of not less than one nor more than five dollars, to be recovered by information, before any justice of the peace of the state, as other small debts are recovered, one-half thereof for the use of the informer, the other half for the use of the state.

August 1845.

SEC 3. And be it enacted, That this act shall not go into operation until the first day of August, eighteen hundred and forty five.

it shall and may be lawful for the collector, to summon for his, or their defence, the posse comitatus, and each person so summoned shall be allowed fifty cents per day, to be levied on the county, district or city, as other charges; and in case any person upon being summoned, shall refuse to serve, the person so refusing, shall be liable to a fine of five dollars, to be recovered before any justice of the peace; one half to the use of the party prosecuting, and the other half to the county.

SEC. 10. And be it enacted, That if any person shall strike or assault a collector in the discharge of his duty, or shall strike or assault any individual serving as one of the posse comitatus as aforesaid, or shall strike or assault any person, to deter or prevent his bidding at a collector's sale, or for having bid at such sale; in every such case the party offending, shall be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars or more than five hundred dollars, and imprisoned for not less than two, nor more than twelve months.

SEC. 11. And be it enacted, That in case of any collector or collectors shall hereafter pay into the treasury in cash, any sum or sums of money now due or hereafter to become due for taxes levied or to be levied for the use of this state, at or after the period limited by law for that purpose, and before he shall have collected the same from the several persons charged therewith, then and every such case, the right of the delinquent tax payer, to pay in coupons or certificates of interest due from this state, shall be taken away, and such delinquents shall be required to pay the several sums of money due from them for taxes, in cash, and shall be liable to be proceeded against in manner aforesaid, in case of refusal.

SEC. 12. And be it enacted, that if in any of the counties, the state taxes directed to be levied and collected for the years eighteen hundred and forty-one, eighteen hundred and forty-two, eighteen hundred and forty-three, and eighteen hundred and forty-four, have not been levied and collected as required by law, then and in all such cases, the said taxes shall be levied and collected as follows: that is to say, the sum of twenty cents on every hundred dollars worth of assessable property within such county, with the commission allowed by law thereon for the use of the collector, shall be levied and collected with the taxes for the year eighteen hundred and forty-five; and the sum of twenty-five cents on every hundred dollars worth of assessable property within such county, with the commissions allowed by law thereon for the use of the collector, shall be levied and collected with the taxes for the year eighteen hundred and forty-six; and the sum of twenty-five cents on every hundred dollars worth of assessable property in such county, with the commissions allowed by law thereon for the use of the collector, shall be levied and collected with the taxes for the year eighteen hundred and forty-seven; and the sum of twenty-five cents on every hundred dollars worth of assessable property in such county, with the commission allowed by law thereon, for the use of the collector, shall be levied and collected with the taxes for the year eighteen hundred and forty-eight; the said several instalments of arrears, with interest, to be paid into the treasury, together with the state taxes, which shall or may be directed to be levied in and for the said years eighteen hundred and forty-five, eighteen hundred and forty-six, eighteen hundred and forty-seven, and eighteen hundred and forty-eight.

SEC. 13. And whereas, doubts have been expressed in reference to the true construction of the eighth section of the act, passed at December session, eighteen hundred and forty-three, chapter two hundred and eight, for remedy whereof and to enforce the collection of the taxes in the manner therein pointed out; be it enacted, that the taxes for the years eighteen hundred and forty-one, and eighteen hundred and forty-five, shall be considered one year in arrear on the first day of January, eighteen hundred and forty-six; the taxes for the years eighteen hundred and forty-two, and eighteen hundred and forty-six, shall be considered one year in arrear on the first day of January, in the year eighteen hundred and forty-seven; the taxes for the years eighteen hundred and forty-three, and eighteen hundred and forty-seven, shall be considered one year in arrear on the first day of January, in the year eighteen hundred and forty-eight; and the taxes for the years eighteen hundred and forty-four, and eighteen hundred and forty-eight, shall be considered one year in arrear on the first day of January, in the year eighteen hundred and forty-nine, and if the said taxes are not paid to the agent or agents, appointed or to be appointed by the treasurer, as provided by the second section of the said act of eighteen hundred and forty-three, chapter two hundred and eight, then and in all such cases, immediately after the said first days of January, in the respective years, eighteen hundred and forty-six, eighteen hundred and forty-seven, eighteen hundred and forty-eight, and eighteen hundred and forty-nine, the proceedings directed by the eighth section of the said act of eighteen hundred and forty-three, chapter two hundred and eight, shall and may be had.

Remedy to enforce the collection of the taxes.

SEC. 14. And be it enacted, That similar proceedings may and shall be had in all those counties, in which there are no collectors, whether there be an agent or agents in those counties or not, it being the intention of this act, that the compulsory proceedings authorised by the eighth section of the said act of eighteen hundred and forty-three, chapter two hundred and eight, shall be had in each and every county of the state, in which there may not be a duly qualified collector or collectors: Provided however, that in those counties in which there are no duly qualified agents, the several tax payers of such counties, shall be and they are hereby authorised to pay the sums due from them for taxes to the clerks of said counties, who shall receive and pay the same into the treasury, on the first days of July, October, January, and April, in each year, and on failure, their bonds shall be put in suit, with an allowance to the said clerks of one per centum on the amount so received, and paid into the treasury.

Not restricted to any particular county, district, &c.

SEC. 15. And be it enacted, That in the execution of the powers conferred upon the governor, by the twelfth section of the said act of eighteen hundred and forty-three, chapter two hundred and eight, he shall not be restricted to any particular county, district or city, but he shall be at liberty in the selection of the persons to discharge the duties prescribed by the said twelfth section, to take them from any part of the state.

Collector to have power to summons &c.

SEC. 16. And be it enacted, That if any collector or collectors shall have good reason to believe, that he will be resisted by violence in the discharge of his duties in making sales under this act, then and in all such cases, the said collector or collectors shall have power and authority prior to the day of sale, to summon the posse comitatus for his protection and the protection of peaceable persons attending such sale, and the said posse when so summoned and attending, shall be paid in like manner, as hereinbefore provided, and shall be liable to be proceeded against, as also hereinbefore provided, for failing or refusing to attend.

Agents to receive bonds or sealed notes for taxes.

SEC. 17. And be it enacted, That the agents to receive taxes in the several counties of this state, may receive from the taxable inhabitants thereof, their bonds or sealed notes, payable in not more than one year from their dates, for the sums due and in arrear from them for taxes for the years eighteen hundred and forty-one, eighteen hundred and forty-two, eighteen hundred and forty-three, and eighteen hundred and forty-four, with interest on each years taxes from the end of each year, which bonds or notes, it shall be the duty of the said agents, to deposit with the clerks of the several county courts, taking from them duplicate receipts therefor, of which one shall be kept by the said agent, and the other transmitted by him to the treasurer of this state.

Notes or bonds to be liens on real and personal estate.

SEC. 18. And be it enacted, That the said notes or bonds shall be liens on the real and personal estate of the party or parties signing the same, and that from time to time, and as often as the said notes or bonds become due, it shall be the duty of the said clerks, if the said bonds or notes are not paid to the said clerks within the period of thirty days thereafter, to issue executions thereupon, as upon judgments rendered in their respective courts, which executions shall be placed in the hands of the sheriffs of the counties, who shall proceed to make the money upon them, as upon other writs placed in their hands for execution, and it shall be the duty of the said sheriffs to pay the money, which they shall make upon the said executions, to the clerks of their several counties, who shall account for and pay the same to the treasurer of this state on the first days of July, October, January and April, in each and every year, after deducting therefrom as a compensation for the service imposed upon them by this act, a commission of one per centum, and in case of failure to account and pay as aforesaid, within ten days after the periods above limited for that purpose, the bonds of the clerk so failing shall be put in suit, and a recovery had thereupon for the whole amount due, with interest at the rate of fifteen per centum per annum, from the time of such default.

Money to be paid to Treasurer of the State.

SEC. 19. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the clerks of the levy courts, and of the commissioners of the tax of the several counties of this state, and of Howard district, and of the appeal tax court of Baltimore, to transmit to the treasurer of this state annually, within thirty days after the annual levy of the taxes for this state, a return of the assessments of the property in each county, Howard district, and the city of Baltimore, showing the amount thereof, and also the amount of the taxes levied for the use of this state, and placed in the hands of each collector of such county, district or city for collection, and for neglecting or refusing to perform this duty, the clerk so neglecting or refusing, shall be subject to presentment, and upon conviction thereof in the county court of the county, Howard district, or the city court of Baltimore, to a penalty of one hundred dollars for the use of this state.

Transmit to the Treasurer annually the annual levy of taxes for this State.

SEC. 20. And be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the deputies of the attorney general, to give information of such neglect or refusal to the grand jury of the proper county, district or city, upon being advised of such neglect or refusal, by the treasurer of this state.

Deputies of the attorney General to give information to Grand Jury.

CHAPTER 246.

An act Supplementary to an act for the General Valuation and Assessment of Property, and to provide a Tax to pay the Debts of the State,—passed at March session, eighteen hundred and forty-one, chapter twenty-three. Passed March 6, 1845.

Whereas, much doubt has existed in regard to the true interpretation of the act of eighteen hundred and forty-one, chapter twenty-three, whether the twenty cents on the one hundred dollars, thereby directed to be levied, as a direct tax, included the commissions allowed to collectors, or whether such commissions were to be paid by an additional levy: And whereas, the court of appeals has recently decided that the said act designed that the clear sum of twenty cents on the one hundred dollars, should be paid into the treasury—Therefore,

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore, and the levy courts or commissioners, as the case may be, of any county or district, where a levy has not been made for the payment of the commissions to the several collectors of the direct tax, as recited in the foregoing preamble, be and they are hereby authorised and directed to levy a tax for the purpose of paying said collectors, according to the provisions of the forty-seventh section of said act of eighteen hundred and forty-one. Authorised and directed to levy a tax.

MAYOR'S COMMUNICATION.

MAYOR'S OFFICE,
BALTIMORE, January 20, 1845.

To the members of the First and Second Branches of the City Council :

GENTLEMEN :

Having been so recently placed in the office of Chief Magistrate of my native city, by the confiding generosity of our common constituents, I beg leave to avail myself of this my first communication in relation to such of their affairs as may have been intrusted to us, to express to them my very grateful sense of the high honor they have thus conferred on me, with a hope that with my humble abilities, my best efforts may not disappoint their expectations, or be deemed altogether unworthy of the station to which I have been thus called.

Among the various concerns which come within the range of the powers with which you have been entrusted, there are none which have at all times, and every where been considered more important than the education of youth ; the early and proper intellectual training of those who are to become the future men of our country. And since it is evident, that youthful minds have not been found competent to appreciate the value of mental discipline and instruction, it becomes as indispensably necessary in all cases, to supply the means of gathering them together into public schools, as it is to provide places in which imbecility, infirmity, or old age, may obtain mere animal subsistence. Upon this ground, and with an entire confidence that there is no kind of expense which the people of our city would contribute to defray with more alacrity than that of public schools for the instruction of youth, I would take the liberty of asking your early attention to our city laws in relation to this subject ; and if necessary, so to increase the public assessment, as that it may become entirely commensurate to this great and most important subject.

The able and interesting report of the School Commissioners of the city, herewith transmitted, and to which I beg to refer you, shows the prosperous condition and increasing usefulness of those nurseries of learning—the public schools.

That maxim of common prudence, which suggests that prevention is better than the cure of all maladies, prompts me to ask for an in*crease of the Police*, and especially of its night watch, in consequence of the spread and growth of the city. The present police is entirely inadequate to the protection of the property and quiet of our city; while the city has been every year most rapidly increasing, the number of the watch is little more than when the city contained one half of its present number of inhabitants. Most of the watch wards are so large, that it is impossible for one man to do what it would require two, and, in some instances three, to perform. It is not merely necessary that arrest should follow close on the footsteps of crime; much better is it, that malefactors should be altogether deterred by the certainty of punishment. I cannot too strongly urge this subject upon your consideration.

The City Commissioners and Port Wardens' report, herewith transmitted, will exhibit the manner in which their duties have been performed. I regret, that from causes assigned by them, they were not able to carry out the resolution No. 130, directing them to prepare a plan or plans for a City Hall, to be erected on the lot on Gay street. I hope you will give the matter your earliest consideration, as the present building is totally inadequate to the purposes of the city. The room for the accommodation of the city officers is insufficient; the building is, besides, exceedingly dangerous, because of its liability to fire, in which event the loss of papers and records to the city would be incalculable.

I transmit the report of the Baltimore and Susquehanna Rail Road Company, by which it will be seen, that during the last year there has been an increase in the number of passengers transported on the road, of 14,162; and in the quantity of produce and merchandise of 29,052 tons;—notwithstanding which, it does not appear that the company have made money, as their expenditures appear to have increased with the increase of their revenue.

The report of the Counsellor of the city is herewith submitted.

Allow me to call the attention of the Councils to the contract made with the Messrs. Canby, as provided in the sixth section of ordinance No. 47, passed in 1839, for the improvement of Franklin square. The city is called on to perform her part of the contract.

Soon after I came into office I received a communication from the City Commissioners, dated November 13, informing me that the appropriation for the harbor was exhausted, and in consequence they were compelled to suspend the usual operations for want of means to pay the hands. They say: "We are of the opinion that an appropriation of $2,000 is required to be made in advance of the annual meeting of the honorable the City Council, to enable us to meet the necessary expenses in feeding the horses, and removing the sediment, now raised and deposited on the several wharves, so as to be ready to commence operation in the spring advantageously to the navigation of the harbor." Believing it, therefore, more economical to borrow the money than call the Council so much sooner than the time fixed for the annual session, at my request the Register obtained, in his individual capacity, a loan of two thousand dollars. Under this arrangement orders were drawn on him by the City Commissioners for the sum of thirteen hundred and one dollars and eighty-seven cents, being all that was absolutely required. I respectfully recommend an appropriation for the sum thus advanced.

I would earnestly call the attention of the Councils to the present mode of paving and repairing the city. There is a defect somewhere, or such large sums every year would not be expended in repairs. By reference to the City Collector's report, it will be seen, that the sum of $74,403 04 was incurred last year for paving and repairing. I would, therefore, respectfully recommend that the office of inspector of paving and repairing should be created, whose duty it should be, to attend exclusively to the supervision of all new paving and repairs. I think, through such an officer, much money might be saved to the public.

From the report of the Visitors of Baltimore City and County Jail, you will perceive that the average number of daily prisoners much exceeds that of the previous year; a fact greatly to be deplored; one of great public interest, and well calculated to excite a general inquiry as to the causes, with a view of providing a suitable remedy. The very defective construction of that building renders it impracticable by any system of government and police, however judiciously devised and faithfully executed, to prevent free association and intercourse among those confined; who, for the most part, are thrown into rooms in common with each other. Such an arrangement is at variance with the present improved system of imprisonment, which is based on universal philanthropy; looking alike to the good of society, the amendment of the guilty, and the protection of those who may have been unjustly accused; but who are required to pass through the forms of law to establish their innocence. Separation is now deemed an essential element of imprisonment, if it be contemplated to avoid aggravated evil. The indiscriminate association of prisoners is but too apt to increase depravity, and especially among the juvenile, and subjects the innocent to a companionship which they must feel to be a degrading punishment.

Awakened to the evil of defiling the young by confining them to vicious associations, some of our citizens many years since, proposed the establishment of a separate institution for their confinement, to be called by the less odious name of "a House of Refuge." Unfortunately the enterprise failed, and this most interesting part of our community, upon whom it would be so easy to impress a desirable reformation, is still left to the lamentable consequences of contaminating intercourse. The Visitors of the Jail urgently represent the necessity of a House of Refuge, and from the highest sense of duty, I respectfully press this measure upon your serious consideration.

Whether this important proposal be executed or not, certainly the interior of the present Jail should be so re-arranged, or such an additional wing constructed, as to admit of the separate confinement of those who may be sent there either as a punishment for crime, or to await trial. If influenced by no other consideration, the self preservation of society alone demands it.

The report of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company is herewith submitted, by which it will be seen, that the affairs of this company are in the most prosperous condition. The revenue received from passengers is stated to be greater by $59,712 20, and that from tonnage $22,061 32, than the receipts from the same sources during the preceding year; making together $81,773 53. The net receipts from the business of the main stem over and above the expenses independent of its connection with the Washington branch, is stated to amount to $346,946 03, being nearly five per cent upon the capital, and an increase of one per cent on the earnings of 1843. For further details, I refer you to the report itself.

The Susquehanna and Tide Water Canal report is herewith transmitted.

By the kindness of Gen'l. Marriott, Collector of the port, I am enabled to furnish the following statement of the imports and exports of Baltimore; also, the number of American and Foreign vessels entered from and cleared for foreign ports.

The number of new houses erected during the year 1844 is 609, showing an increase of 94 over the year 1843.

The City Collector's report is herewith transmitted. It will be seen that the levy for 1844 was $417,152 49, of which $264,808 54 has been collected. It is a source of congratulation that, notwithstanding the dull times, the taxes, although large, are so freely paid by our citizens. I refer you to the Collector's report for details.

The receipts of the Register for the past year, including the balance in the Treasury on the 31st December, 1843, was $685,893 78, and disbursements for the same year amounted to the sum of $633,701 22, leaving a balance of $52,192 56 in the Treasury on the 31st December, 1844. The interest on the entire issue of the City Stock debt for the past year was paid. All demands on the city treasury during the past year were paid with promptness. You will see by the Register's report that he recommends the redemption of the city stock still outstanding, redeemable at the pleasure of the Mayor and City Council, after the year 1838 and 1840 respectively, the entire amount of which is only $48,346. I would beg to call the attention of the Council to the able report of the Register, which so fully shows the prosperous condition of the finances of the city.

Permit me here to suggest to you the propriety of passing an ordinance, requiring the banks to pay the city tax on bank stock, held by citizens as well as foreigners, in the same manner that it is paid by the banks to the State. The present manner of collecting is justly complained of as very vexatious, and liable to great errors. By the present mode of collecting, the citizen and foreigner only pay the tax; the stockholder, living beyond the limits of taxation, enjoys the benefit of his dividends without deduction, and pays not a cent towards the debt for which his property is liable as ours. The stock of a bank is as much city property as a house or vacant lot, or any other taxable, yet surely he would have to pay the tax assessed on his house or lot. I can, therefore, perceive no reason why he should escape because he lives beyond the limits of the city.

The Appeal Tax Court report, herewith shows the assessed value of property in the city liable to taxes for city purposes for the year 1845 to be $59,377,397. After abatements that may be made during the year, the levy might be safely put down at $57,500,000.

By reference to the report of the Committee of Finance it will be seen that $4,000 of the Court House stock has been purchased out of the sinking fund applicable to that purpose. The Commissioners also recommend that provision be made to take up the six per cent. stock, redeemable at pleasure.

By Resolution No. 54, of last session of the Council, the Mayor was authorized to receive a deed from Messrs. Robert Howard, John Boggs, Alex. L. Boggs and Thomas Humes, of a piece of ground, laid off by them for a public square on the centre of Fairmount. The deed has been made and accepted, agreeably to the resolution. Since then the property holders have called on the city to grade and pave her part of said property; and, as I understand from the City Commissioners that the expense would be large, I would particularly invite the attention of the Council to this subject.

I am pleased to find, by the report of the Health Department, that the city has enjoyed her full proportion of health. For a more detailed statement I respectfully refer you to their report. The present mode of cleaning the streets by contract I think objectionable. Much complaint has been made of the dirty condition of the lanes and alleys; whether it arises from the mode of contracting or contractors, I cannot determine, as the contractors contend that they are only bound to remove a particular kind of dirt. If this mode is to be continued, the contractor should be obliged to remove all dirt of any and every description, that of building materials excepted.

From the report of the "Trustees for the Poor," herewith submitted, you will be pleased to perceive the flourishing condition of the institution under their direction. Allow me, however, to call your attention to the too frequent emigration of paupers for the past years from other countries and cities, to take up their winter quarters in our Alms House. I am sure money would be saved to the city were an appropriation made to send them back to their last proper place of settlement. This being known, might prevent their coming.

I am gratified in being able to say, that the efficiency of the Fire Department continues as heretofore, and I here must beg most respectfully to recommend the adoption of my predecessor's suggestion, viz: "That a general central Alarm Bell be erected, to which all the other alarm bells shall be subordinate—this bell to be attended by a watchman day and night."

There is a very important matter to which I would most respectfully and earnestly call your attention. It is, the fortification and defence of our beloved city. While the general government is spending large amounts in the construction of forts for the defence of our neighboring cities, we, from some unaccountable cause, have been neglected. I am inclined to think it has proceeded more from a want of attention on our own part to this matter than any intentional neglect on the part of the general government. Upon reference to the public documents, you will see that the Chief Engineer of the United States Army, in 1843, in his report upon Military Defences, says, in speaking of the works recommended to be erected on Sillers' Point Flats: "With Fort McHenry as the only defensive work between Baltimore and the Chesapeake bay, that city is wholly without defences against an attack by land; such, for instance, as was undertaken by the English during the last war, and is at the same time not adequately protected from an attack by the river. The first step to be taken in the creation of a better system of defence for this harbor, is the erection of a strong casemated battery on the outer extremity of Sollers' Point Flats."

Again, allow me to call your attention to the report of the Secretary of War, Nov. 10, 1844, made to the present Congress, in which he says: "Whilst Fort McHenry, (a work of inferior force) is available to resist a particular kind of hostile attack upon Baltimore, it forms the only defence by fortification to that important city. The true defence and safety of Baltimore will, it is believed, be found in the erection of permanent works on Sollers' Point Flats, about ten miles below the city. Let the proposed fort upon these flats be completed, and the inhabitants of that city will no longer have occasion to apprehend a second battle of North Point." You will also find that Colonel Totten, Chief Engineer of the United States Army, in his recent report, says: "I must again invoke the aid of the War Department in procuring the authority for, and the means of commencing this work, so indispensable to the security of the city of Baltimore." He also urges that no time should be lost in beginning the Fort on Sollers' Point Flats, because it must necessarily be two or three years before any aid can be derived from it. I hope the Council will, at an early day, take such action as to press this matter upon the attention of Congress. The means of protection of the city should be looked to before it is wanted.

All of which is most respectfully submitted.

JACOB G. DAVIES, Mayor.

REGISTER'S STATEMENT.

---

Register's Statement of the condition of the City Treasury, on the 31st day of December, 1844, and of the estimated receipts and payments for the year 1845.

CITY REGISTER'S OFFICE,
Baltimore, January 20, 1845.

Gentlemen of the First and Second Branches of the City Council:

Your assemblage in annual session, renders it my duty in compliance with an ordinance, approved March 12th 1840, to present a report showing the condition of the finances of the city at the close of the fiscal year, and the estimates of receipts and payments required for the current year, together with "any other information connected with the finances of the city, calculated to aid the Councils in their deliberations on the subject."

The receipts of the past year, including the balance in the treasury, on the 31st of December 1843, was $685,893 78; and payments for the same period amounted to the sum of $633,701 22, leaving a balance of $52,192 56 in the treasury on the 31st ult.

Interest on the entire issues of the City Stock debt for the past year, was paid as required by ordinance, to the Commissioners of Finance.

The interest payable for the present year, will be as follows, viz: On $4,460,713 12 six per cent., and $905,421 84 five per cent.; and also on $95,095 21 five per cent. Court House stock debt, making an aggregate of $317,668 63.

As regards the Court House stock debt, one half of the interest thereon is paid by Baltimore county; so that the interest actually payable by the city, will amount to the sum of $315,291 25.

All demands on the treasury during the past year, were paid with a degree of promptness seldom equalled.

The unquestionable ability of the city promptly to meet all its obligations, cannot fail to be highly gratifying to our entire community; but when it is recollected that in addition to the sum required for interest on City Stock debt, large annual appropriations are required for various purposes, as detailed in the annexed statement; and also that more than one half of the State tax and licenses collectively, is paid by the citizens of Baltimore; and furthermore that it is proposed to increase this already unequal burthen, the entire subject merits and will doubtless receive the most careful and enlightened consideration of the Council.

In compliance with resolution No. 145, approved April 16, 1844, I transferred to Paul Beck, Jr., $15,000 out of the certificate for $60,000 of stock held by the city. I would most earnestly recommend that the Register be directed to hand over the remaining $45,000 to the Commissioners of Finance, to be used in their discretion, for the redemption of that portion still outstanding of city stock, redeemable at the pleasure of the Mayor and City Council, after the years 1838 and 1840 respectively; the amount of which is $48,346. The certificates of stock held by the city, together with the rents of the property, which by ordinance is applicable to the redemption of city stock debt, would be fully sufficient to cancel the stock alluded to.

For the purpose of endeavoring to show the propriety of the course recommended, it may not be improper to allude to the manner in which the city become possessed of the stock, now in my hands.

In the year 1842, when the city by resolution, refused to continue to receive Rail Road Orders in payment of taxes and other dues, a large amount of said orders remained in the treasury, $82,945 19 of which was funded in city six per cent. stock, as it was impossible to dispose of them in any other manner except at an immense loss to the city; and for the purpose of meeting the most pressing demands against the treasury, temporary loans, with much difficulty, were obtained in compliance with authority vested in me for that purpose. A portion of this stock was subsequently sold at $108 7-8 as heretofore reported. It could easily be made to appear that if the Rail Road Orders had been sold instead of funded at the period alluded to, the loss to the city in principal and interest, would by the present time, have been fully equal to the certificate of stock now held.

Therefore, if the Council should deem it proper to adopt the course recommended, the effect would only be to apply the sum thus saved, towards liquidating the city stock debt.

The annual appropriation for the harbor was exhausted in November last. In compliance with the request of the Mayor, I procured a loan of $2000 on my individual account, that being the estimated sum wanted by the City Commissioners. On this account I have paid $1,301 87, being all that was absolutely required.

A dividend of $87,500 was received from the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company for the past year, being two and an half per cent. on the amount of stock held by the city in said company. It will be seen that I have also estimated a dividend of two and a half per cent. for the present year.

Circumstances seem to render it proper that I should refer to a subject not immediately connected with the duties enjoined upon me by the Council. The treasurer of the State, in his recent report to the Legislature, uses the following language :

"There is another kindred subject to which I would invite your attention, I mean the law relating to the tax on stocks of the city of Baltimore ; no revenue from that source has reached the treasury for two years past. By chap. 281, of December session 1841, sec. 4, it is made the duty of the Register of the city of Baltimore, semi-annually to withhold and pay over to the Collector of the city, out of the interest on the stock of the city, the respective portions of tax due by the holders of said stock. This duty it appears has not been performed ; and by chap. 289, of December session 1843, the Register is directed to set apart and pay over to the treasurer of this State, out of the interest on the stock of the city of Baltimore, the amount of tax levied on said stock, under the act of March session 1841, chap. 23, and its supplement, without reference to the place of residence of the stockholders, which he has thus far failed to do ; under these circumstances, I have felt it incumbent on me to communicate the facts, that such measures as you may deem requisite to remedy the defect may be taken."

As respects the act of Assembly of 1841, I furnished to the City Collector, as required by said act, a detailed statement shewing the names of all the holders of city stock, together with the sums held by them respectively. Acting as I was informed, under the advice of the attorney for the State, the collector subsequently demanded of me the tax stated to be due from said holders. After full conference with the attorney for the city, he advised that the act of Assembly did not make it obligatory on me to comply with the collector's demand, and of this, he was immediately informed. The result was, a petition to Baltimore County Court for a mandamus, requiring me to show cause why I refused compliance with the collector's demand. An answer was prepared with his usual ability by William L. Marshall, Esq'r., late attorney for the city and filed in court, but before the day appointed for the hearing of the case it was abandoned by the attorney for the State. In connexion with this subject, it seems proper to state, that in addition to the full conviction of the impossibility of complying with the act of Assembly, I was unwilling to acknowledge any other authority than that from which I derived my appointment ; and as the Council, by a solemn act, had declared that they would not tax the stock for city purposes, evidently regarding it as a breach of contract, I would not consent (unless obligatory by law) to do that for the State, which the Council under a full conviction of its injustice had refused to do for the city. It may also be stated in addition that I am not charged by ordinance with the payment of interest to the holders of city stock, but it is made my duty to pay over the entire interest to the Commissioners of Finance, by whom it is paid to parties respectively to whom it is due. Every certificate of stock issued by the city sets forth the obligation of the city to pay to the holder thereof full five or six per cent interest as the case may be, and it would be difficult to suppose that an enlightened Legislature ever intended to require me, as the representative of the city (in which position it seems to be contended I was placed) to violate a solemn contract made by the city. It seemed altogether proper that if the State determined to collect tax from the holders of city stock that it should be done through its own proper agent. As respects the act of Assembly of 1843, the same objections applied to it as to that of 1841.

On consultation with Hugh D. Evans, Esq., the present counsellor of the city, he advised me not to withhold the State tax from the interest due by the city to the holders of city stock; and stated moreover, that such a proceeding might in his opinion make me individually liable to the parties for the sums withheld.

The attorney for the State was fully informed without delay of the opinion of the attorney for the city, and invited to institute such proceedings as in his judgment the case might require, but after a full investigation of the entire subject, the attorney for the State deemed it useless to institute any proceedings whatever, as it would only subject the State to unnecessary expense.

In connection with this subject, it also seems proper to state, that the Appeal Tax Court in their official return to the treasurer of the State in the year 1842, reported as part of the assessable property liable to State tax, the stock held by its citizens. The treasurer having in his possession this official document, and also in the actual receipt of a large sum of money returned to him by the collector which was received from the holders of city stock for the State tax thereon, it seems strange that it should have escaped the vigilant attention of the treasurer that a portion of the returns of the collector was on account of tax on city stock. It seems scarcely less irreconcilable with the ability, industry and devotion of the treasurer, that he never should have learned from published accounts, or from the attorney for the State, or that he never should have enquired from any source whatever the reasons why the duty which he deemed acts of Assembly required of the Register were not performed. Without in the slightest degree intending to cast an imputation on the treasurer, I am constrained to say, that if he had been half as desirous to be correctly informed on the subject as he seems to have been willing to cast an implied censure, he would not have remained ignorant of the facts and circumstances here-in detailed.

By reference to the accompanying statement, it will be seen, that the entire existing and estimated claims against the treasury to be paid during the present year, including the quarter's interest accruing on the 31st day of December next on city stock debt, amounts to the sum of $711,527 71. Should the special appropriations for the present year equal those for the past, $23,200 will be added to the above sum.

The entire receipts for the current year to be derived from existing ordinances and other sources, are estimated at $410,366 12. It thus appears that from the taxes of this year, it will be necessary that $301,161 59 shall be paid into the City Treasury before the first day of January next, exclusive of the sums that may be required for special appropriations.

It appears from a communication addressed to me by the Appeal Tax Court in compliance with my request, (marked A) that the amount of assessable property subject to city taxes is $59,377,397—of this sum, $3,575,664 is without the limits of direct tax. It may be safely assumed, that not more than $57,500,000 can be calculated upon as the average basis of the respective levies. On this sum a tax of 70½ cents on the hundred dollars would produce $431,250 00. As before remarked, $301,161 59 will be required to meet existing and estimated demands, exclusive of special appropriations. To secure the payment of this sum within the current year, it appears to me, from careful examination, that a levy as above stated will be required. This view of the subject will be strengthened by an examination of the actual collections for the last three years. It will be seen, that less than 7-10 of the taxes of each year were collected within the year. Assuming that 7-10 of the taxes of 1845 will be received within the year, the result would be the receipt of $301,875 from a levy of $431,250.

OFFICE OF THE APPEAL TAX COURT,
Baltimore, January 13th, 1845.

To the Honorable City Register.

DEAR SIR:

In accordance with your request, dated December 26th, 1844, we respectfully make the following statement:

The assessed value of property subject to city taxes for the year 1845 is as follows, viz :

|                                                                    |                     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------|
| Within the limits of direct taxation is . . . . .                  | $55,801,733        |
| Real estate without the limits of direct taxation, . . . . .       | 3,003,650           |
| Personal property without the limits of direct taxation, . . . . . | 572,014             |
| Total, . . . . .                                                   | $59,377,397 |

The estimated sum, which we are of opinion may be safely levied on, may be fixed at $57,500,000.

Averages would give the following proportions:

|                                                                    |                     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------|---------------------|
| Within the limits of direct taxation, . . . . .                    | $54,035,604        |
| Real Estate without the limits of direct taxation, . . . . .       | 2,910,584           |
| Personal property without the limits of direct taxation, . . . . . | 552,812             |
|                                                                    | $57,500,000 |

Respectfully submitted.

Your obedient servants,

PETER LEARY,
JAMES L. ARMSTRONG,
A. R. LEVERING,

Appeal Tax Court.

( B )

BALTIMORE, January 13, 1845.

To JESSE HUNT, Esq., Register.

DEAR SIR,

I am of opinion that you can safely base your estimates of receipts of arrearage taxes in the year 1845, on account of the several charges, as follows:

|                                     |             |

Collector of Taxes for 1841, '42 and '43.

( C )

CITY COLLECTOR'S OFFICE,
Baltimore, January 14th, 1845.

JESSE HUNT, Esq., City Register.

DEAR SIR :

Agreeably to your note of the 26th ult. I herewith hand you a statement shewing the taxes remaining unpaid on the respective city levies for the year 1844, and also an estimate of the sums that may probably be received on the respective levies during the year 1845.

As to the probable proportions of the levy of 1845, which may be collected for the current year, I have no reason to suppose it ought or will materially vary in ratio from the last year, which was between six and seven-tenths of the amount levied.

City taxes remaining unpaid of the levy for the year 1844, $152,343 96, viz :

|                                    |            |              |
|------------------------------------|------------|--------------|
| Of the City Court tax, . . . .     | $4,094 03 |              |
| Of the City Poor tax, . . . .      | 5,263 74   |              |
| Of the County tax, . . . .         | 8,188 09   |              |
| Of the School tax, . . . .         | 11,697 23  |              |
| Of the Internal Improvement tax, . | 70,024 01  |              |
| Of the Direct tax, . . . .         | 52,315 47  |              |
| Of the Road and Bridge tax, . . .  | 761 39     |              |
|                                    | <hr/>      | $152,343 96 |

Of which it may be safely estimated that $139,000 will be paid in the year 1845, viz :

|------------------------------------|---------|--------------|
| Of the City Court tax, . . . .     | $3,710 |              |
| Of the City Poor tax, . . . .      | 4,870   |              |
| Of the County tax. . . . .         | 7,440   |              |
| Of the School tax, . . . .         | 10,680  |              |
| Of the Internal Improvement tax, . | 63,950  |              |
| Of the Direct tax, . . . .         | 47,660  |              |
| Of the Road and Bridge, . . . .    | 690     |              |
|                                    | <hr/>   | $139,000 00 |

Very respectfully,

A. R. LEVERING, Collector.

CITY COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE,
Baltimore 4th January, 1845.

To Jesse Hunt, Esq., Register of the City of Baltimore :

SIR,

We have the honor of acknowledging your communication of the date of the 26th ult., containing the following queries :

First.—"The balance due on the respective appropriations directed to be disbursed by your board."

Second.—"Will any payment be required during the ensuing year on account of any existing special appropriation connected with your board."

Third.—"The estimated sum that will be required during the ensuing year on account of appropriations usually expended under your direction."

Fourth.—"Estimated receipts during the ensuing year from establishments and hire of Mud Machines."

For the answers to the three first queries, we respectfully refer you to the accompanying estimate,—and in reply to the fourth, we have to state that the receipts from establishments may be estimated at $40; those from the Potter's Fields at $50, and as regards those from Mud Machines, we have to observe, that there is now due and collectable, the sum of $1,259 78, which when added to the probable receipts for work the current year, we believe it safe to assume that there will be received from that source, $2,759 78 cents.

All which is respectfully submitted,

JOHN N. MURPHY,
GEORGE A. DAVIS,
JOHN IJAMS,
City Commissioners.

CITY COLLECTOR'S REPORT.

---

CITY COLLECTOR'S OFFICE,
Baltimore, January 14, 1845.

To the Honorable Mayor and City Council of Baltimore :

GENTLEMEN :

A summary report of the operations of this office for the year eighteen hundred and forty-four is herewith presented, by which it will appear that the whole city levy for 1844 was $417,152 49, of which $264,808 54 have been collected, leaving a balance uncollected of $152,343 95.

Forty-two paving and repaving warrants have been received in this office from the City Commissioners for collection, all the bills for which, amounting to $74,403 04, have been withdrawn by the pavers agreeably to ordinance, on account of commissions on which there has been received $904 20. The warrants for opening Boyd and Josephine streets have been closed, and $1,557 85 paid. Four pump warrants, amounting to $642 40, of which $51 39 has been collected, the balance is in process of collection.

During the short interval between the appointment of the present Collector and the passage of the Ordinance, authorising the late Collector to close the taxes for 1841, 1842 and 1843, there was received on account city taxes for 1842 and 1843, $4,534 59, and for paving and pump tax, $35 50.

All of which is most respectfully submitted.

A. R. LEVERING, Collector.

City Collector's Report to the 31st December, 1844.

A. R. LEVERING, Collector.

CITY COLLECTOR'S OFFICE,
Baltimore, January 14, 1845.

REPORT
OF THE
COMMISSIONERS OF FINANCE.

To the City Council of Baltimore :

The Commissioners of Finance herewith present their report for the past year. It will be seen that $4000 Court House stock has been purchased out of the sinking fund, applicable to that purpose. The Commissioners received from the Register the entire sum required for payment of interest on city stock debt for the year 1844.

There is still due of the five per cent. stock of 1838 and 1840, certificates amounting to $48,346. To the redemption of this stock the Commissioners recommend that the certificates of stock, which, by the report of the Register, it will be seen remains in his hands, amounting to $45,000, may be applied, for which purpose the certificates held by the Register, together with rents from city property, which by Ordinance is applicable to the redemption of city stock debt will be sufficient.

The Commissioners of Finance recommend that provision be made to take up the six per cent. stock redeemable at pleasure. They would also most respectfully call the attention of the Councils to the five per cent. falling due on the 1st July, 1845.

OF THE ### APPEAL TAX COURT.

---

OFFICE OF APPEAL TAX COURT,
Baltimore, January 14, 1844.

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore :

GENTLEMEN :

The Appeal Tax Court respectfully present the following statement, shewing the assessed value of property in this city, liable to taxes for city purposes, for the year 1845, viz :

|                                                                |              |
|----------------------------------------------------------------|--------------|
| Property within the limits of direct taxation, . . .           | $55,801,733 |
| Real estate without the limits of direct taxation, . . .       | 3,003,650    |
| Personal property without the limits of direct taxation, . . . | 572,014      |
| Total, . . . . .                                               | $59,377,397 |

We would further state, as we have estimated, that the amount, (after abatements that will probably be made,) upon which the levy might be predicated, will not exceed $57,500,000.

Respectfully submitted,
Your ob't serv'ts,

PETER LEARY,
JAMES L. ARMSTRONG,
A. R. LEVERING,
Appeal Tax Court.

SIXTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
COMMISSIONERS OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS
TO THE
MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL.

---

To the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore :

GENTLEMEN,

The Commissioners of Public Schools, in obedience to the ordinance establishing the schools, have the honor to submit their report for the year eighteen hundred and forty-four, being the sixteenth annual Report.

The board was organised in January last by the election of JOHN B. EMERY, President, and Henry S. Sanderson, Treasurer. Mr. John W. Tilyard, the former clerk of the board, was continued in office.

During the year Messrs. Joseph A. Ramsey, H. Willis Baxley, William F. Frick, and Britain Chase have been appointed by the board to fill vacancies created by the resignation of Messrs. Hugh A. Cooper, Samuel Harris, Samuel Mass and A. H. Pennington.

On the first of February last, the school house at the corner of Cove street and Ridgely alley, for the accommodation of male and female No. 8, was completed, and opened with a respectable number of scholars. It has been insured in the Firemen's Insurance office for $4,000.

Agreeably to a communication made to the last Council, the commissioners have established a higher grade of female schools, in which the different branches of a liberal education may be taught.

While this arrangement is necessary to the perfection of the system, it also increases the efficiency of the female public schools, where hitherto much of the principals' time was necessarily devoted to a few advanced pupils to the unavoidable neglect of the great body of scholars. As females are more delicate than males, and cannot attend school at a remote distance, especially in inclement weather, convenience seemed to require two schools, one in the east and the other in the west. As the house at the corner of Front and Pitt streets, known as Female No. 3, was inconvenient and in a decaying state, the commissioners contracted with Mr. William H. Hooper for the erection of a building on its site, that would accommodate the eastern female High School and female No. 3. The house has been erected, and is 50 feet long by 34 feet—is two stories high, with convenient study and recitation rooms—is built in a neat and substantial manner—and cost with its furniture, $3,500. The High School occupies the second story, the primary school the first story. For the western female High School, a commodious building has been rented in Paca street, near Fayette, at $200 per annum. For these schools the services of able and experienced teachers have been obtained, and though they have but recently gone into operation, we anticipate the most beneficial results to the system from their establishment. Mr. David Ring is principal of the eastern female High School: Mr. Robert Kerr of the western. Their salary is $750 per annum.

In obedience to an ordinance of the City Councils, approved March 11th, "authorising and directing" the commissioners to purchase for the High School the property known as the "Assembly Rooms and Theatre Tavern," the commissioners purchased the aforesaid property at a price of $23,000, and obtained a deed for the same. They have paid $8,000 of the purchase money, and given the obligations of the city, signed by the board as agents, for the remaining $15,000, in three annual instalments of equal amount.

The tavern has been removed, and its former site makes a suitable yard for the accommodation of the schools in the building. The room on the first floor of the building, occupied by male school No. 9, was found too small for the number of pupils in attendance. The school was accordingly divided, and the junior pupils, under the care of Mr. M'Nevin, the assistant, were transferred to the basement, which had been altered and fitted up in a convenient manner for their use. Results demonstrate the prudence and economy of the purchase of this property. Besides accommodating three schools; the library room and saloon afford a clear revenue of three and an half per cent. on the purchase money. Nor will this revenue be much impaired under the most extended operations of the high school: for as the school will probably never require the use of the saloon, except for lectures, which will take place during the day, this occupation of the saloon need not prevent its being rented at night for lectures, concerts and the like entertainment.

The High School, which at its institution had a signal effect in recovering the schools from their declension, and has contributed so much to give respectability and permanency to the system, still maintains its reputation, and with increased facilities, gives evidence of increased usefulness. Though its expenses are considerable when compared with those of other schools, they have not at any time exceeded or even been commensurate with the objects contemplated and secured by its operations.

Several considerations have induced the commissioners to discontinue the night schools. First and chiefly—that the number of scholars in attendance, and the amount of good accomplished did not justify the necessary expense of keeping them open—that early youth when the will is tractable, and the disposition docile, is a season more favorable for improvement than a later period, when the mind is froward and impatient of restraint—and that those who neglected to avail themselves in early life of the advantages afforded by the public day schools, cannot reasonably expect the city again to make provision for them at triple the expense. The principle of desiring the greatest good to the greatest number from the smallest expenditure, forbids such an expectation.

The night schools would seem, in some instances, to afford undue advantages to some; as in the case of those who may have a large number of apprentices under them, for the education of whom they have received valuable considerations in the provisions of the indentures they hold, and consequently have less reason to look for the special munificence of the city.

Several changes have taken place in the teachers during the present year: Miss M. Godman, principal, and Miss E. Godman, assistant, of female No. 6, were superseded in August last by Miss A. L. Story, the former principal of female No. 5, and Miss Ann Cockey;—Miss Emily Jours, assistant at female No. 4, was transferred as principal to female No. 5; and Miss Sarah Barrett appointed to fill the vacancy thus created.

On account of the increase of pupils in our female schools, the board determined whenever there are over two hundred pupils in any school, to employ second assistants at $50 per annum.

This is considered a wise economy, for it will enable the other teachers to devote more time to larger pupils, and secure much greater progress in study. This is a new and interesting feature in our school operations, and the board confidently expect the happiest results from regarding our High Schools, male and female, as Normal Schools. After their probationary studies in these schools, pupils who may wish to make teaching a profession, would be greatly benefitted themselves by a subordinate place in the primary schools for a year or two, while their services would be equally as valuable to the schools, as those of teachers at a higher salary; and much expense to the city might be avoided. Having approved themselves efficient in these stations, they might be advanced gradatim till they were at length made principals of schools. Teachers thus reared and educated in the schools are familiar with all their details—their characters and acquirements fully known to the commissioners—would be, in general, better calculated to conduct our public schools than other teachers. While this policy would redound much to the credit of the system, it would also afford young persons of talent and education, who have not means to embark in other enterprises, a field for employment alike profitable to themselves and to the community at large.

The public examinations in April last, and the private examinations recently held by the board, were for the most part highly creditable to the ability and activity of the teachers, and the industry of their pupils, and afforded abundant evidence of the efficiency of the system and of its claims to the general patronage of the public.

The progress of the pupils in the musical department evinces care and ability on the part of the instructor,—upwards of three thousand pupils are instructed at an annual expense of less than $600, making the charge for each pupil less than twenty cents per annum—is a consideration which ought to meet the favor of the public; and the popularity of the concerts which have been given, prove the deep hold it has taken on the affections of the people.

In accordance with the 5th section of ordinance No. 7, passed at the last session of the Council, requiring “the treasurer to give bonds to the corporation for the trust reposed in him,” bonds were prepared and offered to the Mayor and Register, but were refused by both, as they did not consider themselves authorised by the ordinance to receive them. It would seem that the Mayor, as representative and executive of the corporation, is clearly indicated and embraced in the term “corporation.” The Council however, in its wisdom, will determine whether any further legislation is necessary in the premises.

In the management of the fiscal affairs of the schools, rigid economy has been observed as far as a just regard for the interest of the system would permit—and all the supplies of the schools have been furnished by contract at the lowest prices.

In all cases where parents have been found unable to pay for the education of their children, free admission has been granted in the manner least calculated to effect the feelings of the parent or child.

The following list embraces the schools, with the teachers who have charge of them, and the number of pupils on the roll :

By the above it will be seen that the number of scholars in attendance in the day schools, has increased 697 during the past year.

In conclusion, the board congratulate the Council and the friends of education, upon the success of a system inseparably connected with our social and political happiness, and beg for the means of continuing it in a manner corresponding to the importance of its objects and the munificence of the city.

To enable the board to meet all its present and future engagements with promptitude, they would earnestly recommend that the former levy of five cents in the hundred dollars, be continued.

The treasurer's general account, exhibiting the receipts and expenditures for the present year, is subjoined as a part of this report.

His account current, with the proper vouchers, are deposited in the office of the Commissioners of Public Schools, for the inspection of the City Council.

For an estimate of the expenditure and receipts for the ensuing year, the treasurer's report hereto annexed, will fully explain.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

EIGHTEENTH ANNUAL REPORT
OF THE
PRESIDENT AND DIRECTORS TO THE STOCKHOLDERS
OF THE
BALTIMORE & OHIO RAIL ROAD COMPANY.

---

At a meeting of the Stockholders held pursuant to the charter, on the second Monday of October eighteen hundred and forty-four, in the city of Baltimore, the President and Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company submitted the following report and statement of the affairs of the company :

FIRST.—Of the Main Stem.

The statement A shews the state of the Company's affairs on the 30th ultimo ; and the revenue and expenses of the Main Stem, for the year ending on the same day, are shewn by the statement B.

There is also submitted a tabular statement, marked C, prepared by the Engineer of Machinery and Repairs, which presents in detail the operations of the Main Stem, and the actual expenses of working that part of the road during the year : together with the amount of receipts, from all sources, during the same period.

These statements shew a considerable increase both of travel and trade : and a diminution in the expenses, in proportion to the amount of business ; and it is worthy of remark that, although the number of passengers over the entire length of the road, has increased at least thirty-six per cent. upon that of the past year, the aggregate increased cost of transporting them does not exceed five hundred dollars.

It is believed that the economy in the working and management of the road, is as perfect as that of any other similar road in this country or in Europe.

The revenue received from passengers, is greater by $59,712 21, and that from tonnage $22,061 32 than the receipts from the same sources during the preceding year ; making together $81,773 53.

The net receipts from the business of the Main Stem, over and above the expenses, independent of its connection with the Washington Branch, amount to the sum of $346,946 03, being nearly five per cent.

upon the capital, and one per cent. more than the net earnings of the year ending on the 30th of September 1843.

The injuries to three of the culverts near Harper's Ferry, alluded to in the last annual report, have been fully repaired, and the work finished in the most substantial manner, at a cost of $1,500 less than the estimate presented in that report. The Board regret that, in the present report, they are called to record an accident to the bridge over the Potomac river at Harper's Ferry, by which one of the arches of that structure has been destroyed.

The arch gave way under the weight of a single Engine and tender, after sustaining the entire work of the road for nearly two and a half years, and, only the day previous, eight heavy trains of passengers and burthen, without the slightest indication of defect or weakness in any part.

Providentially, no life was lost, and but slight injury sustained by any of the men who were carried down in the fall; nor was the Engine materially damaged.

A delay of a few hours only was occasioned in the passenger travel, and the interruption in the tonnage transportation was less than a week.

The remaining six arches of the bridge, even those contiguous to that which fell, have received no injury from the fall. A thorough investigation into all the particulars of the accident, has satisfied the Board that it was occasioned by the decay of several pieces of timber, comprising an important part of the framing of the arch.

This part of the superstructure in order to protect it as far as practicable from the weather, had been closely covered by weather boarding and roofing, which rendered it inaccessible to the ordinary inspection constantly made of these structures; and the timber having been in use for two years only, there was no reason to suspect any unsoundness.

No settlement of the frame had previously taken place inconsistent with the soundness and safety of the structure, and it had borne, only the evening previous, the usual trials of its strength: indeed the final fracture took place in a part of the frame so situated, and so surrounded and kept in place, as that there could be no sensible yielding without a total giving away. The decay, therefore, most probably proceeding from an unperceived leak in the tin roof and the spreading of the water between the several pieces of timber composing the straining beam, had been progressing silently and unsuspected, until the strength of the remaining sound wood became insufficient to withstand the strain to which it was subjected.

This accident, it is believed, does not authorise any suspicion of an inherent defect in the principle of construction of this, or any other bridge employed on the line of the road. In the opinion of the skilful Engineers, by whom the plan of the bridges was adopted, it is a combination of the most excellent and approved forms of superstructure known to the science of engineering: the principal features being modeled after those of the celebrated bridge over the Rhine at Schaffhausen, which, previously to its destruction by fire, was considered one of the most admirable specimens of the art in the world. The heavy trade of the rail road, and of numerous droves of cattle on that part of it common to the public, which the ruined arch had withstood for more than two years, and the greater evidence of strength offered by some other bridges precisely the same in principle on other parts of the line, for upwards of five years, also inspire great confidence in the plan of these structures; which, from the lesson now learned, may be rendered even more secure in the future.

Immediately after the occurrence of the accident, the weather boarding was removed from all the other structures upon the line of the road, and a minute investigation made into the state and condition of all their parts.

Every precaution will be immediately taken to give additional strength and security to these structures; and nothing will be omitted to prevent a recurrence of an accident.

The Board have already determined upon a plan of reconstructing the arch at Harper's Ferry, which will not only ensure more adequate protection of the timber from the effects of the weather, but, at the same time, expose all parts of the structure to a daily and minute investigation of their condition.

The entire loss occasioned by the accident, and the sum required to restore the arch to a condition of even greater strength and security, is estimated not to exceed $7,594 40, being $8,932 92 less than the surplus revenue of the year just ended.

In all other respects the entire line of the road, including the depots and water stations; together with the cars, engines and machinery of every description, are in a state of thorough repair, and adequate, without augmentation, for the accommodation of twelve per cent. more than the business of the past year.

During the year there have been paid to the Messrs. Baring an instalment of $50,000, and interest to the amount of $14,809 72, amounting, with the cost of placing the funds in England, to $71,106 92, and the former being paid in advance produced a saving in interest of $1,100. After these payments the balance due Messrs. Baring, payable in annual instalments of $50,000, is reduced to $200,000.

In the same time there has been paid from the receipts of the year, for an additional engine mentioned in the last annual report; for walling the shafts of the Doe Gully Tunnel, keying up and refitting bridges; for the sideling at Dam No. 6, under the arrangement with the canal company; for improvements at the Cumberland depot, balances for right of way, and various other items arising out of the construction of the road, the sum of $46,747 45.

There have also been paid in the year $29,200 of the debts remaining unpaid, alluded to in the last annual report; leaving of this class unsettled only $11,500, which is yet in litigation.

Besides the foregoing items, there have been applied during the year $38,216 74 to the construction of coal cars for the transportation of coal from the mines to Baltimore, pursuant to the contract with the Maryland and New York Iron and Coal Company, referred to in another part of this report; and which, during the present year, the Board propose to reimburse from the proceeds of the coal trade.

After these payments, and the payment of interest on account of the million loan, the net revenue of the year from the Main Stem, (including the sum of $61,956 received from the Washington road,) amounts to $200,582 18, and with $10,945 14, the surplus of the year 1843, makes an aggregate of revenue on hand from this road, of $211,527 32.

Of this, the Board have applied to the purposes of the sinking fund, according to the resolution announced in the annual report of 1842, for the reimbursement of the loan contracted for the construction of the Washington road, the sum of $20,000, and of the balance, they have determined to divide among the stockholders, two dollars and fifty cents upon each share of stock, payable on and after the first day of November next; leaving a surplus of $16,527 32; being $8,932 92 more than the cost estimated to repair the loss occasioned by the accident to the bridge at Harper's Ferry.

While reporting the condition of the Main Stem, and result of the operations of the year, the Board would not discharge their duty if they failed to recall the attention of the stockholders, and especially that of the city authorities, to the onerous expenditure annually incurred by the necessity of introducing passengers and burthen into the city by the employment of horse power, and which must necessarily subtract that sum, whatever it may be, from the amount which might otherwise be divided among the stockholders, and paid into the city treasury. This source of expense, already amounting annually to not less than $18,171 77, must continue to increase in proportion to the augmentation of trade and travel over the road.

Considering the numerous sources of competition with which, in its present unfinished condition, this work so essential to the prosperity of the city, must contend, every motive of sound policy would seem to recommend the utmost possible reduction in the expenses of transportation; and if Baltimore hope successfully to contend with other rival works, in whatever quarter they may exist, the public authorities will find it necessary to lend all the aid in their power to cheapen the introduction of produce and merchandise into this market.

The necessity of employing horse power through the streets of the city, does not add less than ten cents per ton to transportation of all kinds upon the rail road; of which the obvious effect is not only to drive much of the trade to other channels, but to reduce the net revenue upon that which it may be possible to retain.

The harmless employment of steam power under proper regulations in the streets of other cities, and, by another company, in those of Baltimore, already shews that the privilege may be extended to this company without serious apprehension of damage ; and it may be safely affirmed that if the city authorities desire to retain the present amount of trade in flour and other produce ; or to enjoy to any considerable extent the advantages of the transportation of coal, this privilege will be indispensable.

In the last annual report, the stockholders were informed that, upon the application of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, the Board had consented, with their existing power, and as a part of the general trade, to engage in the transportation of coal from Cumberland to Dam No. 6 on the canal, at two cents per ton per mile, to be thence carried by the canal to the District of Columbia ; and it was at the same time stated that, the company might engage in it at a less charge on the whole or any part of the line.

It will appear in the course of this report, and has already been officially stated to the legislature, that it may do so at little more than half that charge.

The charge of two cents per ton per mile had been previously established as the fixed rate for the transportation of coal, without regard to time, distance or quantity ; and the object of the canal company, in proposing the arrangement, was to induce this company to provide the necessary sidelings at Dam No. 6, and engage in the transportation, in connection with the canal, at the same rates.

If in the opinion of the canal company a less charge than two cents per ton per mile would have been necessary for the success of the arrangement it desired to make, it would have been practicable to have made an arrangement for that purpose ; and if the rail road company could have relied upon an amount of trade equal to 50,000 tons per annum, it would have been willing to increase its machinery for that purpose, according to the growth and requirements of the coal trade.

The canal company proposed the charge of two cents as a rate mutually for the interest of both companies ; and, in the opinion of those proposing it, as low as would be necessary to insure the transportation of coal upon the rail road to Dam No. 6, in sufficient quantities "to meet the growing demand in the market for that article."

Representing the toll on coal by the canal from Dam No. 6 to Georgetown, at half a cent per ton per mile, and the freight at the same, the president of the canal company believed that two cents per ton per mile on the rail road, even during a period of two years, "would enable the dealer to sell his coal in market at a profit sufficient to encourage the trade."

The means of transportation at these rates being insured, the extent of the demand would, nevertheless, in the opinion of the canal company, be uncertain, and the trade necessarily in some degree, an experiment, only to be determined by circumstances : though from assurances received from parties concerned in the coal fields, the quantity of iron and coal which one company alone would require to be transported the first year, it was thought would amount from fifty to eighty thousand tons: that "a regular supply being furnished the principal steam boat company on the Hudson would consume about $500,000 worth annually, and that the consumption of the city of New York alone, would not be less than two hundred thousand tons per annum."

The canal company rightly judged that, if the coal fields of the Allegheny could be developed to such an extent, or even in a far less degree, the arrangement proposed would be mutually advantageous to both companies; and although this company was in no degree misled by these expectations, and were satisfied that many years would elapse before they could be realised even to a moderate extent, they were unwilling to reject an appeal thus made, and decline a business upon terms which, under any circumstances, and without reference either to amount or regularity, would yield a good profit.

The result however has proved that the canal company either greatly overrated the ability of the coal dealers, or the extent of the demand; since from that time to the 30th ultimo inclusive, notwithstanding this company provided a sideling at Dam No. 6, costing two thousand dollars,—less than four thousand tons of coal, and not any iron, has been offered for transportation in the manner contemplated by the arrangement. It may be added that, during the same period, no evidence was afforded that any capital had been obtained for working the mines, or any arrangements made towards the preparation of the necessary transportation of coal from thence to Cumberland; except in the instance of a single company; and by that, arrangements have been made with the rail road company for the transportation annually, for the period of five years, of fifty thousand tons of iron, coal and fire brick, from the mines to Baltimore.

Under such circumstances the Board deemed it inexpedient to make any addition to their existing power, or to adopt the improved machinery by which it is now certain the cost of transportation, may be, and in fact has been reduced to little more than half the charge assented to between Cumberland and Dam No. 6.

Until the Board could be certain of completing the rail road to Cumberland, there was little occasion to investigate its capacity for the transportation of coal; and indeed from the character of the machinery generally in use upon rail roads before that period, a general impression prevailed that for heavy articles, the value of which in market bore so small a proportion to their weight as to admit of very low charges, for long distances, these roads would not be a desirable mode of transportation.

For, although a like weight of flour and coal, other things being equal, might be transported at the same charge, it is nevertheless obvious that in consequence of the greater value of a ton of flour than an equal quantity of coals, a rate of charge which might well be paid by the former, would be altogether too high for the latter.

The improvements in railway machinery, however, have been gradually, but constantly, progressive; and in the spring of 1842, when it was certain that in the course of the year the rail road would be completed to Cumberland; anticipating that, from that time they might be required to some extent to engage in the transportation of coal, at least for the consumption of Baltimore, the Board directed a thorough investigation by Mr. Knight, chief engineer, into the power of their machinery for the purpose of transportation generally, including that of coals and iron.

For the better understanding of what follows, it may be proper here to state that, the chief, if not the only object for which railways were first introduced, was the transit of heavy merchandise at a moderate rate of speed; and, for many years after their introduction, were exclusively used for the purposes of the great Colliery railways in England. As late as the year 1821, the first of the modern or travelling class was authorised in England: and in 1826 the railway between Manchester and Liverpool was chartered. Down to that time the transportation of heavy merchandise was the chief object it professed; and even then it was not determined to employ locomotive power. As late as the year 1829 when it became necessary to determine the nature of the power to be employed, the utmost capacity hoped to be attained in the locomotive was an Engine weighing not more than six tons, capable of drawing on a level and straight road, at ten miles an hour, three times its own weight, and to cost less than three thousand dollars. Although at least one eminent Engineer in England ventured, at that time, to hazard the speculation that at some future day an improved Engine might be constructed with capacity to maintain a speed of twelve, sixteen, eighteen or twenty miles an hour, it was treated in the official reports of commissioners selected to determine the nature of the power, as so extravagant as to prejudice the scheme of employing the use of locomotive power.

Long before the spring of 1842, this speculation had been more than realized.

The genius of American artists also had outstripped the improvements in England; and this company was actually employing upon their road Engines weighing fourteen tons, running on eight wheels, of which four were drivers; and capable of drawing on a level and straight road five hundred tons, and over grades of eighty-two and a half feet, with curves of one thousand feet radius, not less than eighty tons at a speed of eight miles an hour.

The investigation made by Mr. Knight, under the direction of the Board, contemplated the use of this class of Engines. So far as it related to coals, it also contemplated a regular trade, which, in his estimate, he charged with a full share of the expenses of maintenance of way, and interest of six per cent. upon the capital. Including these elements, he estimated the cost of the transportation of coals from Cumberland to Baltimore at one cent and a half per ton per mile. Comprehending the same elements, the cost would have been less from Cumberland to Dam No. 6.

The report of Mr. Knight was submitted and published in March, 1842; and as early as that period, Ross Winans, an ingenious mechanic of Baltimore, had not only contrived a far more important improvement in the locomotive, but had actually constructed an Engine weighing twenty tons, running on eight wheels, all of which are drivers,—and with the weight equally distributed over the whole, so as that the bearing upon any one is not greater than upon that of the ordinary machine of ten tons weight,—capable of hauling over a level and straight road, eleven hundred tons; and over grades of eighty-two and a half feet to the mile, with curvatures of one thousand feet radius, about one hundred and seventy tons, at a speed of eight miles per hour.

With a knowledge of the results of Mr. Knight's investigation and of the further improvements and advantages in railway machinery, it was impossible the Board should doubt their ability to engage in the transportation of coals, at rates not only profitable, but sufficiently low, according to any rate of charges then known, to exclude apprehension of rivalry from other quarters. In this sense only are the observations of the Board upon this part of the subject, in their second reply to the House of Delegates, when confined to their context, to be appropriately taken.

The capacity of the railway for the transportation of coals was accordingly announced in their annual report of October 1842; and it was at the same time assumed that, when the road should be completed to Cumberland, and thence to the mines, the demand in the market of Baltimore, and other parts of the Union, might, in a short time, require the transportation of one hundred thousand tons of coal annually.

The Board was satisfied that without suitable conveyances from the mines to Cumberland, neither the coal nor iron could be advantageously sent to market from Cumberland, by any channel whatever; and, in the meantime, they deemed it inexpedient to make any preparations to engage in the business. They considered it not less apparent that even after such conveyances should be provided, the trade in coals, would be regulated by the extent of a demand, in a great degree dependent upon the price at which the article could be afforded.

Neither point was free from embarrassment, and the interest of the stockholders required that the subject should be investigated with great care. The grounds upon which a just determination could be made were in some degree speculative. So far as any positive data could be obtained, the consumption of bituminous coal had been gradually and regularly diminishing, and that of the anthracite increasing in a much larger proportion, and, within some years past, with great rapidity. The latter had been advantageously adapted to the manufacture of iron: more extensively to the use of steamboats, locomotive engines, to the purposes of manufactures generally, and for all domestic uses. The consumption of this article had been gradually extending throughout most parts of the Union. From the facilities of delivering it in the market by the Delaware and Hudson work, the Reading Rail Road and other improvements in Pennsylvania, the price had been gradually diminishing, and the low price at which it was ordinarily selling in the markets of Philadelphia and New York, made it quite plain that the existing demand for coals, for most purposes throughout the country, was fully supplied by it.

It was, therefore, obvious that the introduction of the Cumberland coal, in any considerable quantity, could only be effected by superseding, to nearly an equal extent, the use of the anthracite; and from the preference so long given to the latter, and the adaptation of machinery of all kinds to its use, they believed the degree in which this might be effected for many years at least, exceedingly doubtful; too doubtful, in their opinion, to warrant a large expenditure of capital in preparations for the trade. It was desired rather that the extent of the demand should be previously tested by actual experiment.

If any reliance could be placed upon the estimates of the cost of transportation upon canals by the improved Ericsson propellers, it was evident that, with suitable roads from the mines to Cumberland, and the use of the rail road to Dam No. 6, even at the rate of two cents per ton per mile, the experiment might be made with nearly the same advantage as when that work should be completed to Cumberland.

In that case, the charge for transportation upon forty-five miles of rail road, at two cents per ton per mile would amount to ninety cents: the tolls on one hundred and thirty-four and a third miles of canal at half a cent per ton per mile for the cargo, and two cents per mile for the boat, (assuming the average cargo of boats to be eighty tons) would be seventy-four cents: and if to this should be added thirty-three and a half cents for transportation on one hundred and thirty-four and a half miles of canal, at the rate of forty-six cents for one hundred and eighty-four and a half miles, and thirty-five cents for contingencies and transshipment at Georgetown, making together sixty-eight and a half cents, the entire cost of transportation by this mode, of a ton of coal from Cumberland to Georgetown, including expense of putting it on board a vessel at that place, would not exceed two dollars thirty-two and a half cents.

If the charge upon the rail road should be placed at one and a third cent per ton per mile, as it might be, the entire cost of coals, according to the assumed cost of the Ericsson propellers, from Cumberland to Georgetown, would be only two dollars two and an half cents per ton.

Without meaning to vouch for the results expected from the application of the Ericsson propellers, no reason was perceived why they might not be used with the same advantage, below as above Dam No. 6; and that if a demand for the Cumberland coal could, under any circumstances, be created to any extent, it might not be effected as well in the manner here mentioned, as by any other means.

It appeared to be the plain duty of the Board, therefore, to await such developments; and, to engage in the business when it should be demanded by the public, and be profitable to the company.

In the month of January 1844, and previously to the order of the House of Delegates of the 25th of that month, the Board were officially informed by the president of the Maryland and New York Iron and Coal Company, that having procured the funds requisite to construct a railway from the mines to Cumberland, he was anxious to proceed with the work; if the charge for the transportation of iron and coal from the mines to Baltimore, could be fixed at such rate as would warrant him in adopting the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road for the transportation of his products.

The same officer subsequently proposed a contract for that purpose, to continue for five years after the completion of his road; to furnish a freight of coal, pig iron, bar iron, fire brick and castings and other manufactures of iron, (the principal freight being coal) in quantities of one hundred and seventy-five tons per day, for three hundred days in the year. The construction of the railway from the mines to Cumberland, was represented as dependent upon the acceptance of the proposition by the rail road company, upon terms which would be entirely satisfactory.

After the necessary investigation of the subject, the Board agreed to furnish cars and moving power, and to transport the freight proposed from the mines to a suitable shipping point at Baltimore, at the rate of one cent and one-third of a cent per ton per mile, a distance of one hundred and eighty-eight miles, with an addition of ten cents per ton for transportation through the streets of Baltimore; the cars to be loaded and unloaded at the expense of the Maryland and New York Company, and when iron and other articles should be transported in house cars, there should be added for such articles one cent per ton per mile for one hundred and eighty-eight miles.

These terms were accepted by the Maryland and New York Company, who proceeded to the construction of the railway, and to make the other requisite preparations to carry it into effect.

This company also is preparing the proper number of the heavy Engines, and coal cars; and both parties have mutually agreed that the operations under the contract shall commence on the first day of November next.

The estimates of cost upon which the Board felt warranted to enter, into this contract, will be found in the appendix to this report.

In the course of a short time, therefore, any speculation which may in any quarter be indulged of the ability of either party to comply with its engagements, will be at an end: and the adaptation of the rail road to the transportation of coals and iron at the above rates will be subjected to the test of actual experience.

On the 25th of January, and February, 1844, respectively, during the negotiations with the Maryland and New York Iron and Coal Company, and without the prompting or knowledge of the Board, two orders passed the House of Delegates, requiring the President and Directors to report to the House the lowest rate of toll per ton per mile, at which the company would agree to transport coal, iron, &c., from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, under a permanent arrangement; and also to report upon various other points comprehended in the orders.

These orders and the several replies of the Board to the points embraced in them, dated the first and fifteenth of February, will be found in the appendix to this report; and will afford, it is believed, a satisfactory view of the whole subject.

If by the inquiries contained in the orders, the legislature designed, as it may be presumed they did, to invite or lead the rail road company to lend its assistance to the encouragement and development of the coal trade, the terms upon which the Board expressed their willingness to do so must be conceded, in any view of the subject, to be just and reasonable.

The rates of charge, stated in the replies, were little more than one half of those that had been previously proposed as quite low enough to develop the trade; and, sufficiently low, in the mode indicated in this report, to enable the dealer to put his coal on board of a vessel at Georgetown, and thence at New York at less cost, it was supposed, than coal from other parts of the Union had been previously delivered at the same city.

Indeed, the rate of charge assented to by the rail road company appeared to be so much lower than had been anticipated, and so much below what had been previously deemed sufficient, as to beget an apprehension of the ability of the company to engage in the trade at such rates.

The other terms presented in the replies of the Board cannot be deemed less reasonable. They required only, previous to expending the capital of the stockholders in making preparations for the trade, that communications absolutely indispensable to the transportation of coal to market should be made from the mines to Cumberland; that capital should be provided to work the mines, and that responsible parties should engage to furnish coal in proper quantities, to employ the machinery necessary for its transportation.

These conditions were considered as the appropriate evidence of the existence of a demand to an extent, short of which, no means of transportation would be needed.

The coal and iron of the Allegheny region is not to be developed by a demand dependent upon a precarious and occasional supply. On the contrary, it can only be effected by steady operations conducted with such capital as will be adequate to maintain a regular trade; and if those concerned in such operations have no confidence in a demand equal to the sale of fifty thousand tons per annum, there can be little inducement for the preparation of extensive conveyances to market. This Board at least was unwilling to expend one or two hundred thousand dollars in machinery, not adapted to other purposes, for a branch of transportation dependent upon casualties by which it might be only occasionally employed; and unless they would have been content to rely upon vague expectation, and a precarious trade, it is difficult to imagine any conditions more reasonable than those prescribed.

That the estimates of the cost of transportation are sufficiently liberal, there need be no reasonable doubt.

Founded upon the actual experience of the company in their other operations, they are little liable to error; and are sustained not only by the Engineers by whom they are prepared, but by Mr. Knight by whom they have been carefully examined, and compared with the elements of his former report.

That they may be fairly understood, these estimates must be considered in reference to the particular trade to which only they are applicable.

They suppose a distinct branch of transportation separate from, and wholly independent of the general trade and traffic of the road; and therefore not properly chargeable with the existing and fixed expenses incident to the general miscellaneous business; which would be the same without the trade in coals.

They also include only that degree of wear and tear due to this particular operation.

The estimates suppose also: First—the use of the heavy improved engines, possessing double the capacity of those assumed in the former report of Mr. Knight. Second—a cheaper and lighter description of cars, by which the useful load in proportion to the weight of the car is considerably increased; and Third—a larger amount, and greater regularity in the trade.

Conforming the data embraced in the report of Mr. Knight of 1842 to these elements, the present estimates will be shewn to be abundantly sufficient. They have also received the approbation of respectable scientific journals throughout the Union, and are found to be even more liberal than those comprehending the actual cost of similar transportation upon other roads in the United States.

All estimates of the actual cost of transportation upon English railways, of which we have any accurate knowledge in detail, are of a date so remote as to embrace only the earlier description of locomotive power; possessing from a third to a fifth of the capacity of that proposed to be employed upon the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road in the transportation of coals: and contemplate the use of a description of cars weighing one ton and three-tenths, and with a capacity to carry two tons and six-tenths of coal.

Conforming the actual cost, according to the experience in England, and the description of machinery there employed, to the improved engines and cars to be used by this company, it will be found to correspond with the present estimates, and to verify them in every particular. By the most recent authority of the best approved authors of England, it has been confidently stated that coals may be transported upon English railways at a half penny per ton per mile: which is not only about the same as the cost assumed in the estimates of this company, but, when taken in connection with the more expensive operations of English railways, would warrant even a less estimate in the United States, than that now given.

The Board have it in their power to state also, that, subsequent to the date of the estimates submitted to the House of Delegates, a further improvement has been made in the construction of the coal cars, by which a greater reduction in the cost of transportation is effected.

The estimates submitted to the House of Delegates adopted a car of a wood frame, costing three hundred and eighty dollars, weighing three tons and carrying seven tons of coal. In the improved car, subsequently invented and now adopted, sheet iron, in a cylindrical form, is substituted for wood, costing three hundred and forty dollars, weighing two and a half tons and carrying seven tons of coal.

In the appendix to this report the Board subjoin a revised estimate of cost founded upon this improvement, and including interest of six per cent. upon the capital employed in the machinery; by which it satisfactorily appears that coal may be transported from the mines to Dam No. 6, at a cost less than one cent per ton per mile; and to Baltimore at a cost of one cent and half a mill per ton per mile.

It is thus shewn that the statement of the capacity of the rail road, submitted by the Board in their reply to the Legislature of the 15th of February 1844, is in all respects confirmed, and may be fully relied upon.

The Board desire again to repeat that whether it may be expedient to engage to any extent in the transportation of coal at the rates now estimated, must depend upon contingencies not at present to be foreseen. They have at no time particularly desired to engage in it; and would always regard it as quite subordinate to the paramount duty of pressing forward their work to the Ohio river; leaving the general trade in coals and iron from the Allegheny region, to others more ambitious of monopolising it. So long, however, as the rail road may be arrested at Cumberland, the transportation of these articles must unavoidably form a natural and legitimate object of attention; and during this time, if those concerned in supplying the demand, looking to the advantages of speed and uniformity of working at all seasons, find it advantageous to resort to the rail road, neither the interest of the stockholders nor a due regard to the trade of Baltimore would permit the Board to decline the business.

SECOND.—Of the Washington Road.

The affairs of the Washington road are shewn by the statements D and E.

These statements shew an improvement not less gratifying in the trade and travel and in the operations of the road, and also in the expenses of working the road in proportion to the business, than has been already stated in those of the Main Stem.

The net earnings for the year ending on the 30th ultimo, are $104,519 33, being upwards of six per cent.; which added to the surplus of the preceding year amounting to $6,275 86 make an aggregate of $110,795 19, or six and five-eighths per cent. upon the capital of the road. Of this sum the Board have decided to divide among the stockholders six dollars per share, payable on and after the first day of November next; reserving a surplus of $11,795 19.

The Board deem it proper on this occasion to announce their purpose in future of dividing among the stockholders the net earnings of this road semi-annually, without reference to the operations of the Main Stem.

The sum paid to the State for the six months from the 1st of July 1843 to the first of January 1844, being one-fifth of the gross receipts from passengers amounted to $18,189 19, and from the first of January 1844 to the first of July 1844 to $22,851 10 making together $41,040 29.

It will be observed that if to this sum of $41,040 29 be added the sum of $33,000, the amount of dividend to be received by the State from the Washington road, $12,500, the dividend from the main stem, and $1,269 60 regularly remitted to London as the interest on £5,250, the amount of the sterling bonds sold on account of the State's subscription of $3,000,000, it will be seen, that during the year, the State has received the aggregate sum of $86,809 89 being nearly nine per cent. upon the actual investment in both roads.

The railway, the passenger and burthen cars and depots and water stations are in good condition; and a comparative statement of the operations upon the road during the past and preceding year, is hereto appended, marked F.

In the last annual report the Board adverted to the rivalry between the inland route south of Washington, by the rail roads through Richmond and Petersburg, of which the Washington Rail Road forms an important connection, and the bay line from Baltimore to Norfolk, and thence by the Portsmouth and Roanoke Rail Road: and they stated the desire of the parties interested in the Southern rail roads, that this company should co-operate with them in such reduction in the fare upon the Washington road as might be necessary to bring a greater amount of travel to the inland route.

The Board also acquainted the stockholders with the provisions of their charter, forbidding any reduction in the charge upon the Washington road without the consent of the legislature, or, in the recess, of the Governor of the State: and which also prevents the rail road company from applying to the legislature for such consent, without conferring upon that body a dangerous control over the chartered privileges of the company.

During the last session an application was made to the legislature by other parties to consent to a reduction in the charge; and the rail road company itself was desirous that the discretion vested in the Governor to be exercised by him in proper contingencies in the recess, should also be extended to the Board of Directors, in order that it might be exercised when a proper occasion should arise with a better knowledge of the circumstances than the Governor in most cases could possess.

It is very obvious that at the time of granting the charter, although it established for general purposes a maximum and minimum charge, the legislature itself foresaw that contingencies might arise in which it would be expedient and necessary, temporarily at least, to reduce the charge; and accordingly on this ground they authorized the Governor to act in the recess. Experience has shewn that the necessity thus contemplated was not overrated by the legislature; but it has also shewn that the discretion they provided for the emergency, has proved altogether inadequate; and under these circumstances it appeared to the Board, not less for the interest of the State than for the public and the stockholders, that a similar discretion should be vested in the Board, who with a familiar knowledge of the subject, might act in this respect under the same responsibility as that under which all their other duties are performed.

By an existing law, the Board have the unlimited power to reduce the charge upon all passengers going and returning between the two cities of Baltimore and Washington, or between any intermediate points on the same day: and no objection was preceived to such enlargement of the power as might be found to increase the travel upon the road, and to augment the revenue of the company.

It pleased the legislature, however, not only to withhold such discretion from the Board of Directors, but to adjourn without giving any consent upon their own part to a reduction in the charge; and it is the opinion of the Board that in consequence of this failure on the part of the legislature, many passengers between Baltimore and Washington, and Baltimore and points south of Washington, and also a considerable number who were desirous of attending public celebrations of various kinds, have been prevented from using the rail road, to the serious injury of the interest of the State and of the company.

After the adjournment of the legislature, measures were taken by parties more immediately interested in the success of some of the Southern Rail Road Companies, to establish an opposition between Baltimore and Washington, which has already diverted a considerable number of passengers from the Washington road.

On the 15th of June last, two lines of stages commenced running for the conveyance of passengers between Baltimore and Washington and intermediate places. On the 25th of August, another line was added, and since that day three lines have been running in each direction daily, by which passengers are conveyed from one city to the other, and taken up and set down at any place in either, at the charge of one dollar and fifty cents each.

By the annual report of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Rail Road Company, dated 27th May last, it would appear that these lines have been established under the auspices of that company.

In that report it is stated:

"Large as this increase is, the Board of Directors have no doubt it would have been materially larger, but for the high charges on the South- ern travel, imposed by the State of Maryland, and the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company on the Baltimore and Washington Rail Road.

"The excessive rate charged on the through travel on this work, has tended to retain on the bay, and to throw into coasting vessels, or divert over the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road to the Ohio River, a considerable amount of travel which would otherwise have been secured to the line of rail-road and steam-boat communication through Virginia.

"The presidents of the Virginia rail road companies having for years remonstrated with the Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, and lately appealed to the Governor and Legislature of Maryland unsuccessfully, on the unfairness of exacting an undue proportion of the charge which could judiciously be made on through passengers, the attention of the Board of Directors has lately been directed to other means of preventing for the future the injury which has hitherto resulted to them from this cause, and they are sanguine, that by means of an efficient line of stages, which will be placed about the 15th proximo, on the Baltimore and Washington Turnpike, and which in connection with the rail road and steam boat companies will convey passengers between Baltimore and Richmond, and points south of Richmond, at much lower rates than heretofore, they will be able to recover a large portion of the travel which has hitherto been diverted from their route by the charge on the Baltimore and Washington Rail Road.

"Should their expectations in this respect be realized they will be enabled to protect themselves against the competition of other routes, at the same time that they will prevent the reduction in their charge, (which will be confined to passengers taking the stage line,) from benefitting the Baltimore and Washington Rail Road, and thereby tending to keep up the excessive charge which has hitherto been levied on through travel on that work.

"Should the legislature of Virginia co-operate, as the Board of Directors can scarcely doubt they will, by refusing a right of way, or any other privileges to the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, until they shall have redressed the grievance of which the State of Virginia, and the Virginia rail-road companies have so much reason to complain—the Board of Directors entertain no doubt it will be ere long corrected."

It is understood from other sources, although not official, that the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Rail Road Company, has contracted to pay the stage proprietors two dollars and fifty cents upon each through passenger carried by the stages between Washington and Baltimore, in either direction, in connection with the lines south of Washington; and has also stipulated to pay the stage proprietors five thousand dollars, if the stages are withdrawn from the route at the company's instance.

From these documents it is obvious that the stages have been established in competition with the rail road, for the avowed purpose of coercing, not the rail road company, for it has no power to act in the premises, but, the authorities of Maryland to engage in a rivalry between different works in another State; in behalf of enterprises comparatively of recent origin, and undertaken with a full knowledge of the declared policy of the State, and of the positive provisions of the law which it is now sought to change.

It is not to be denied that the Washington road is a Baltimore enterprise, designed to connect that city with the metropolis of the Union, and to be supported by the travel to the seat of the Federal Government from the north, east and west, and from Maryland and her capital.

As a thoroughfare of Southern travel, at the date of the charter, the work was scarcely thought of, for at that time none of the present Virginia railways, forming its Southern extension, were projected: and at this day, nearly fourteen years after the origin of the work, the local or Washington travel is the primary, and the through or Southern travel the secondary, in the most ample sense of the terms.

It is evident from the report already quoted, that it is no part of the object of the Southern companies to reduce the charge upon the Washington rail road, in favor of the public generally: on the contrary, they expressly propose that the reduction should be made in favor of "through passengers" only, or those travelling in connection with the Southern lines; and that, this object being attained, they would be content with even a higher charge upon passengers travelling between Washington and Baltimore or intermediate points: a system which, it is understood, the Fredericksburg, Richmond and Potomac Company has adopted upon its own road.

If the terms of the contract, already referred to, be correctly reported, in the prosecution of their designs and as indispensable to their success, "the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Company" does not in fact derive any greater proportion of the charge for passengers passing over their line, than if conveyed by the rail road, at the established charge; but, on the contrary, consents to sacrifice, or give to the owners of the stages a bonus of one dollar upon each passenger carried in the stages, in connection with the Southern lines; and also to incur a penalty of five thousand dollars, whenever it may determine to discontinue the compulsory means at present employed.

Independently of this sacrifice, it may well be expected that the Southern company will ultimately suffer greater injury from these proceedings, than can now be foreseen.

It is not unreasonable to suppose that the substitution, in connection with its route of forty miles of stages, instead of an easy and comfortable rail road, will increase the advantages already complained of in favor of the bay rival: and the consequences most to be apprehended from this novel scheme will be the diversion of a greater amount of travel from the inland to the bay route, and of the local travel between the cities of Washington and Baltimore from the rail road to the stages; such in fact, it is believed, is the result up to this time.

It is obvious, however, that whether the passengers be diverted to the bay line, or to the stages, the injurious effect upon the business of the Washington Rail Road, will be the same.

The number of passengers conveyed by the lines of stages the entire distance between Baltimore and Washington in both directions, from the 15th of June to the 30th of September inclusive, was 3419, and in addition 889 passengers with through tickets to and from points south of Washington, making an aggregate of 4308.

During the same period the number of passengers transported in the trains from Baltimore to Washington at the established rates of the road was 5676, and from Washington to Baltimore 7486, and in addition 2742 passengers with through tickets to and from points south of Washington.

On the 8th of July last, pursuant to the authority conferred by the 7th section of the act of 1836, ch. 261, the Board of Directors of this Company reduced the charge to passengers on the rail road between the cities of Washington and Baltimore, going and returning the same day, to the sum of two dollars and fifty cents for the round trip ; and at the meeting on the 4th of September, they established the same rate of charge for similar travel from all intermediate points.

Within this period the number of passengers transported over the rail road with tickets for the round trip, at the reduced rates, has amounted to 2322.

It will be obvious however, from an examination of the facts and statements now communicated that, unless the stages be withdrawn altogether, a reduction of the rail road charges upon "through passengers" only, or those to and from points south of Washington, according to the views of the Southern Companies, would not prevent the competition, but that it would be necessary to reduce the charge at the same time upon all passengers, passing over the rail road.

By two several communications from the President of the Company, dated the 4th of September, and the 4th instant, the Governor was made acquainted in detail with all the facts herein stated, and to which, up to this time, no answer has been received.

By these communications the duty of the Board has been fully discharged ; since having no power of themselves to act further in the premises, the subject, in the recess of the legislature, can only be submitted to the Governor to be dealt with as he may deem most expedient.

THIRD.—Of the further prosecution of the road to the Ohio River.

The Board have to regret that the obstacles which, since 1842, have retarded the further extension of the rail road, continue to operate ; and have prevented any efficient progress in the actual prosecution of the work, beyond Cumberland, towards the Ohio river.

The Board continue to regard the extension of the road to that point, as the paramount object not only of their duty, but of the authorities of the state and city, and of those public spirited individuals by whom the enterprise was originally projected, and has been subsequently fostered. They cannot doubt that it will be so regarded by all who desire the ultimate prosperity of the city of Baltimore, the welfare of the State at large, or the preservation of the large amount of capital which has already been expended.

Although, upon a just interpretation of the various acts constituting the Maryland charter, the right of the company to extend the road within this State, may still exist; and although it is quite feasible to extend it to the Ohio river, without using any more of the territory of this State, the extension could not be made without further permission from the State of Virginia, or that of Pennsylvania; and, even in Maryland some additional modifications of the charter might be desirable.

The original charter by Pennsylvania, as early as 1828, required as a condition of the grant, in case the rail road should not terminate on the Ohio river in the vicinity of Pittsburg, that the company should, at the same time, construct a lateral road so as to connect that city with the main line. The time allowed by this act expired in the year 1838, and although in the year 1839 the legislature renewed the grant, it did so upon new conditions in favor of the Pennsylvania trade, which, after full investigation, it was deemed inexpedient to accept.

Nor is it probable that these restrictions will be relaxed, unless the company would consent to abandon any other point on the Ohio river, and to terminate the road at the city of Pittsburg; or at Brownsville on the Monongahela river.

The charter by the State of Virginia, passed in 1827, granted, within that State, most of the privileges conferred by the Maryland law; and allowed the road to strike the Ohio river at any point not lower than the mouth of the Little Kenhawa: but, in a subsequent act, passed in April 1838, renewing the grant for a longer period, the company was required to construct the rail road to the city of Wheeling. This law also authorized a subscription by the State of Virginia to the stock of the company of one million of dollars, and a like sum by the city of Wheeling.

Until recently, the construction of the road from Cumberland to Wheeling, without using part of the territory of Pennsylvania, was deemed, by those supposed to be best acquainted with the subject, altogether impracticable; and it is not unreasonable to conclude that this impression, after the act of Virginia of 1838, limiting the termination of the road to Wheeling, had a material influence in imposing the onerous conditions of the Pennsylvania law, passed in the following year.

The act of the State of Virginia of April 1838, also contained a limitation in point of time, and contemplated the completion of the road on or before the fourth of July 1843.

The stockholders are already acquainted with the obstacles arising out of the condition of the money concerns of the country, and the consequent derangement in business of all kinds, which rendered it absolutely impossible to finish the road, at least without numerous sacrifices, within the period mentioned in the Virginia law.

It has therefore become necessary, prior to any resumption of the work, to obtain from the State of Virginia some further time, within which the Board may be enabled to use the privileges granted by the charter of 1827.

Under these circumstances, the Board directed their attention to the advantage of a more southern termination of the road, than that contemplated by the Virginia act of 1838.

Accordingly, in the summer of 1843, they directed a particular reconnoissance, by the chief engineer, of the country between the Potomac and Ohio rivers, at various points upon the latter between Wheeling and Parkersburg, in order to ascertain the facilities of extending the rail road through Maryland and Virginia, and through Virginia alone, without touching Pennsylvania: and also to ascertain the most practicable and advantageous connections with the trade of the State of Ohio, and, through it, of the Western States in general.

The general result of the reconnoissance has satisfactorily shewn the practicability of constructing the rail road through the States of Maryland and Virginia, without passing into Pennsylvania, or through the State of Virginia alone, (avoiding both Pennsylvania and Maryland,) by various advantageous routes from several points on the Potomac at and west of the South Branch, to sundry points upon the Ohio river, between Wheeling and the mouth of the Little Kenhawa.

All the routes embraced by this reconnoissance, through Maryland and Virginia have three principal terminating points upon the Ohio river, namely: the mouth of Fishing creek, the mouth of Middle Island creek, and the mouth of Little Kenhawa at Parkersburg.

By extending the road along the Ohio river, any other intermediate point within the above range, such as Sistersville and Marietta, might, if desirable, be made the terminus.

These routes might commence either at Cumberland, or at the crossing of the North Branch of the Potomac, six miles below.

If at Cumberland, they would proceed up the North Branch; and if at the North Branch, crossing, six miles east of Cumberland, they would pass, by a tunnel, through the Knobley mountain, and, falling again into the valley of the North Branch, re-unite with the former routes, eight miles above Cumberland,—shortening the distance eight and a half miles; and thence continue up the North Branch, Savage river and Crab Tree creek to the summit at the Youghiogheny glades. At this summit two main routes diverge: one leading to the mouth of Fishing or Middle Island creeks, and the other to Parkersburg at the mouth of the Little Kenhawa. Of these there are many branches, which by their connections and combinations will produce a variety of routes, of which the most important may be stated as follows, viz:

First.—A route from Cumberland via Fairmont to the mouth of Fishing creek, forty miles below Wheeling.

Second.—A route, via Bridgeport to the mouth of Middle Island creek, sixty-six miles below Wheeling.

Third.—A route to the last named point, via Clarksburg.

Fourth.—A route to the last named point, via Shinstown.

Fifth.—A route to Parkersburg at the mouth of the Little Kenhawa, ninety-six miles below Wheeling, by way of either Weston or Milford.

These several routes would pass about sixty miles through Maryland, and the remainder of the distance, varying from one hundred and twenty-six and a quarter to one hundred and sixty-three miles, through the State of Virginia: If they should commence six miles below Cumberland, and pass through the Knobley Mountain, the distance from Baltimore to either of the termini on the Ohio river would be eight miles shorter than by the route through Cumberland.

The mineral and agricultural resources of that part of the State of Maryland which would be penetrated by the rail road, constructed upon these routes, are of considerable value, and, if developed, as they would be by this improvement, would become of great importance to the State.

The reconnoissance, however, shews several routes quite feasible through Virginia alone, avoiding altogether both Pennsylvania and the State of Maryland.

Of these, the shortest would commence at the Crossing, six miles below Cumberland, and proceeding by the valley of the North Branch pass round Fairfax's stone, at its head spring; and would be little greater in length than that to Parkersburg through part of both States by Milford and Weston. The other routes confined exclusively to the State of Virginia, would proceed either up the South Branch of the Potomac, crossing the Allegheny near the ridge dividing Cheat and Greenbriar rivers, and descending upon the head springs of the Little Kenhawa; or up Patterson's creek, or up New creek to their heads, crossing the Allegheny and descending by Red creek, or Blackwater, to Cheat river, fall into the route to Parkersburg by Weston or Milford as already described.

The distances of these latter routes cannot be stated with any approach to accuracy, though it may be stated that they would all be longer than that by Fairfax's stone.

During the last summer, and after the Board had been induced to direct a further examination of the country, embraced by the previous reconnoissance, they were informed that a recent examination by Jonathan Knight, Esquire, under the employment of the authorities of the city of Wheeling, had resulted in the discovery of another route terminating at that city; and, by passing round the south-west corner of Pennsylvania, avoiding the use of any part of that State. At the instance of the public authorities of Wheeling, the Chief Engineer was directed to comprehend this route in his further examinations, which has accordingly been done.

The route thus presented is intended to diverge from the line to Fishing creek, previously examined, and herein before described, at a point upon Buffalo creek, and to cross the hilly country between the head of the latter stream and Wheeling creek.

It would elongate the distance to the Ohio river (compared with that to the mouth of Fishing creek) about nineteen miles, and encounter very high grades and expensive excavations. A satisfactory comparison of this route, with that to Fishing creek, or with the more Southern routes, cannot be made with proper justice to either, without instrumental surveys, and detailed estimates founded thereon.

Of the facilities of connection, from the terminus of each of the foregoing routes, with the trade of the State of Ohio, and of the States west of it, extensive examinations were made, comprehending several different lines: one from the mouth of Fishing creek, by Sunfish creek and Will's creek and Salt creek, to the Muskingum near Zanesville.

For the extension of the route beyond Zanesville, northwardly towards the lakes and westwardly through Columbus, the capitol of the State, towards Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, the country affords great facilities.

Another line has been examined from Sistersville, nine miles below Fishing creek, by the Little Muskingum in the same direction: another from Marietta, by the Great Muskingum, toward Zanesville; another from Wheeling, by Indian Wheeling creek and Stillwater and Will's creeks and Dunlap's creek, and the Tuscarawas river, towards Coshoc-ton, thirty miles north of Zanesville; and another from Parkersburg, through Athens and Chillicothe to Cincinnati.

Upon each of these routes favorable connections with the trade of Ohio may be established, and the extensive and contemplated public works of that State be rendered tributary to the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road. It is not practicable however from this general reconnoissance, and without a more particular examination into all the facts pertaining to the subject, satisfactorily to pronounce which of the connections would be the most advantageous.

In the observations already made, nothing more is intended than to assert the feasibility of various routes by which, with adequate means, the rail road may be extended to the Ohio river.

The particular line or terminus to which ultimately a preference should be given, can only be determined by a thorough investigation into the respective advantages of all, and a careful examination, after a minute instrumental survey, of the merits of each. By such survey only will it be possible satisfactorily to estimate the cost, or to decide upon the positive and relative advantages of either, and until the requisite authority be granted to adopt the route which, after such investigation, should prove to be the best, it would be unwise in the company to attempt, and unreasonable in others to require, so large an expenditure as would be necessary for that purpose.

In the prosecution of a work involving interests of such magnitude; by which not only the capital of those engaged in it, but the commerce and general prosperity of the States through which it may pass, and of others stretching throughout the Valley of the Mississippi, must be extensively affected, any attempt to confine it to a particular route requiring an unnecessary expenditure of capital, or an oppressive cost in its working, would not merely cramp its resources and be unjust to the general interests dependent upon its success, but, in all probability, would defeat the enterprise altogether.

The interest of those engaged in such an undertaking is the best guarantee that nothing would be finally determined without the maturer investigation: and that no route which did not promise the utmost accommodation to the greatest amount of business of the largest extent of country, would be adopted. To this test, those whose preference may be confined to particular routes may safely, and ought reasonably to submit their pretensions.

The road from Baltimore to Harper's Ferry was constructed at an expense of $4,000,000 in a full reliance upon the privileges granted by the charter of 1827: and was subsequently extended, at an expenditure of $3,500,000 through the State of Virginia, in an earnest desire to fulfil the expectations of that State: but, at the same time, with an unwavering confidence, that, in the event of any unforeseen embarrassments, the Board would receive the amplest accommodation consistent with the general scope and design of the charter.

They feel quite persuaded that the circumstances already adverted to, are abundantly sufficient to justify the delay which has taken place, and to entitle them to claim the same latitude in the selection of the final route to the Ohio, that in the year 1827 was freely granted them.

They therefore, made application during the last winter, to the legislature of Virginia, asking that further time should be granted for the extension of the road through that State within the limits of the original charter, which allowed the company to strike the Ohio river at a point not lower than the mouth of the Little Kenhawa.

They regret to state that an application so meritorious, and, in any liberal view of the subject, so just and reasonable, encountered an opposition altogether unexpected: and that although, at an advanced period of the session, a bill was reported by the committee, to whom the application had been referred, granting the right of way between the desired limits, it was encumbered by the vote of a majority of the committee, with new and embarrassing conditions which it would be impossible, under any circumstances, or for any consideration, that this company should accept.

Subsequent to the final action of the committee, sufficient time was not afforded for such explanations and discussion as would have been calculated to obtain a juster decision from the body of the legislature; and it was, therefore, deemed advisable, without any definite action at that time, to renew the application under more favorable auspices.

It is the intention of the Board again to present their application at the approaching session of the Virginia legislature, and, as they believe, with better prospects of a more favorable reception.

A persevering and final refusal, by that justly renowned commonwealth, to permit the occupation of her territory for the construction of a great public work, already prosecuted for nearly two hundred miles under her own sanction, in the success of which a numerous, enterprising portion of her own population is deeply and extensively interested, cannot be anticipated. The history of States in America, nor even of those in Europe, whose independent position might be expected to engender local jealousies and competition, affords no instance of a positive denial of such privilege to any great enterprise of modern times; and in the United States, where the bonds of our confederacy are so essentially dependent upon the easiest intercommunication between its various parts, and upon the generous courtesy of its several members towards each other, it is not to be expected that an example will now for the first time be given.

In neither of the charters authorising the construction of the work, can the time indicated for its completion be regarded as the essence, or material part of the grant. A similar provision is to be found in all charters of this description, as part of the ordinary formula; chiefly, if not entirely, intended to stimulate to proper diligence and energy.

It may be safely asserted that the instance is yet to occur, in any part of the Union, in which such limitation has been taken advantage of; where the delay proceeded from no improper negligence, and where further time would be required for the reasonable and judicious accomplishment of the objects of the charter.

The limitation in point of time, in the charter of this company has in fact, been treated as unessential both by Virginia and Maryland.

At the date of the original grant, the limitation being in the Maryland charter, was by the general adoption, merely, of the words and terms of that act, made part of the law of Virginia: and this clause, with the others, may therefore be fairly pronounced to have been enacted in the spirit and design only in which it was recommended by Maryland.

It is already seen that Maryland, certainly, never intended the clause to form an essential part of the grant; and it cannot be supposed that while projecting a great enterprise, with no other purpose than, to connect her principal city with the western waters, she intended, if it should be temporarily delayed by unforeseen and unavoidable contingencies, occurring in its progress, finally to arrest it in an unfinished state; altogether to defeat the main object of the charter, and jeopard the large capital that might have been already expended. Under such circumstances, after the expenditure,—in compliance with the Virginia laws, of so large an amount of money upon an unfinished work, and the completion, at a cost of more than three millions and a half of dollars, of ninety miles of the road within the limits of that State, of which her own population are enjoying and must continue to enjoy the fullest advantage—the Board will not believe, without any fault on their part, upon an unessential point of time, when the accidental delay, by a judicious management of its resources, has rendered the final accomplishment of the work more sure, that the State can be induced either to revoke its former grant, or to burthen it with new conditions wholly extraneous to the subject and fatal to the enterprise!

If any thing were needed to add to the force of these considerations, it would be found in the vast advantages which, in its extension to the Ohio river, the work is destined to confer upon the commonwealth of Virginia.

Leaving, with a brief allusion, the deep interest which, on general grounds and as a member of the Southern community of States, that great commonwealth must have in the commerce and prosperity and power of a Southern city—occupying an important position at the head of the Chesapeake bay, and contending with the Northern States for a participation in the resources of our Western empire,—there are other advantages of more immediate concern which cannot fail to exert a powerful influence.

Stretching from the Atlantic waters, some three hundred miles through the territory of Virginia, and terminating at a point on the Ohio river, within that State, the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road ought, in every sense, to be regarded as emphatically a Virginia improvement, and an essential part of her system of public works.

For the important range of the counties lying between Shenandoah and Potomac, and extending to the Little Kenhawa and the Ohio, it would become the easy and cheap outlet to the Atlantic market for most, if not all of their productions. It may indeed be said that, for all that portion of the State commonly designated as the north west counties, it is the only channel on which they can with any reasonable expectation rely for a communication with any valuable market.

No attempt need here be made to point out the natural fertility and advantages of this part of the commonwealth, or the want of those ordinary approaches to market which has hitherto cramped the energies of the population, and effectually prevented the developement of their natural resources.

Nothing that could be here said could render their condition more apparent, or add to the deep sense with which it is every where acknowledged and lamented.

It is, however, due to the subject to state, what it is presumed will not be denied, that for the privations which all acknowledge, no more effectual remedy could be provided than the extension of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road through that portion of Virginia, to a suitable point on the Ohio river. By this means the agricultural, manufacturing and mechanical industry of a large and rapidly increasing population, would be immediately rendered active and profitable; the lands of not less than thirteen counties be more than double in value; a new impulse would be given to their agricultural and manufacturing labor, and all those resources now dormant, be speedily and successfully developed.

It is not too much to say, that by no other means can this intelligent and powerful portion of the State, be so effectually and permanently identified with their ancient commonwealth, and contribute their full proportion to its moral and political power.

These considerations are fully appreciated by the population of the north western counties: and the interest felt in that quarter in the prosecution of the work, is deep and universal. Not behind any portion of the State in active enterprise, or in enlightened patriotism, the leading men of that region feel that to deny them the facilities of such an access to market as is now tendered to them, mainly by the capital and enterprise of another State, would be not less inconsistent with the acknowledged wisdom and liberality of Virginia, than with their own just claims to its care and protection.

They are, therefore, acting with great unanimity to second the application of the rail road company, and to assert their own rights to the public support. A convention of delegates from eleven of the principal counties and consisting of eighty-six delegates, assembled at Clarksburg, in Harrison county on the fourth instant for the purpose, it is understood, of devising the best means of harmonizing local views, and of ensuring a proper consideration of the deep interest they all have in the extension of the road.

The convention embraced much of the intelligence and respectability of that important part of the state. Its deliberations were conducted with becoming zeal and dignity, and with great harmony and unanimity of sentiment in regard to the main purposes of the meeting. Sundry resolutions were passed declaring that the extension of the rail road through North Western Virginia would ensure the future prosperity of that district, and tend to promote the general interests of the commonwealth. They also adopted a memorial to the legislature declaring the enterprise to be, to all intents, a Virginia work; and asking for a law granting permission to the company to extend the road to some point on the Ohio, not farther south than the mouth of the Little Kenhawa river; and, also that the state by a subscription to the stock of the company, or by a temporary loan of her credit would afford such pecuniary aid as would be consistent with the ability of the state and the just claims of the north western counties. They moreover appointed a committee, instructed to prepare, publish and circulate, as soon as practicable after the adjournment of the convention, an address to the people of North Western Virginia, explaining the great advantages they would derive from the extension of the road.

The people of Ohio, also, are looking with no less solicitude to the prosecution of the road to the Ohio river. Its extension to Cumberland, and the facilities which, from that point, it affords to the travel and commerce of the west, have brought them to regard it as the natural highway to the Atlantic cities.

They do not deceive themselves in supposing, that it will become the shortest and cheapest throughfare from the Southern Vallies of the Ohio and Mississippi; and that its approach to the river will be but the prelude to more extensive tributaries stretching to the remote west. They are already making preparations to adopt it as an indispensable link in their intercourse with the east; and to construct their own local works so as to complete the connection.

Several charters have already been granted by the legislature of Ohio for the purpose of making these connections, and there is every reason to believe that, in prosecuting them to completion, they will not be behind, if they are not in advance, of the extension of the rail road.

In the prosecution of such an enterprise, therefore, of a magnitude equal to any other that has been undertaken in this or any other country, and productive of consequences of such vast moment to all parts of the Union, it is impossible that the Board should falter in their purpose, or despair of final success.

It must not be disguised, however, that in their efforts to obtain the requisite authority from Virginia, and in their labors afterwards to extend the work, they need, and believe, deserve the countenance and support not only of the city of Baltimore, but of the authorities and people of this State.

It has been generally conceded that the subscription of $3,000,000 by the city, in the year 1836, for the extension of the road from Harper's Ferry to Cumberland, was made in consideration of an engagement by the State to provide a similar sum towards the completion of the work from the Ohio river. A like amount was, at the same time, subscribed for the completion of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, which, by the arrangement at that time adopted, was intended and expected by the authorities both of the State and the city, should be extended to Baltimore by a cross cut, for that purpose.

Although in this respect at least, the expectations of both have been signally disappointed, the city nevertheless has to the full extent complied with her part of the engagement. She has already advanced $3,000,000,—the amount of her subscription, by which the road has been finished to Cumberland,—and is annually paying nearly a moiety of the State tax requisite to provide the interest not only upon the $3,000,000 subscribed to the canal in 1836, but of the entire debt of the State.

The rail road company also, is at the same time, assessed at half a million of dollars; and, with the contribution in the shape of a tax from those employed in its service, paid to the State last year, besides its own interest, more than $2,300 for the same purposes.

It would appear, therefore, to be only equitable that the State authorities should liberally aid, to the full extent of her subscription, in extending the road to the Ohio river.

It ought to require no repetition of the inducements so often urged in previous reports, to convince the people of Baltimore, and those of the State more particularly connected by commercial relations with the prosperity of the city, of the vital importance of extending the road to its ultimate destination; and to awaken all classes to a due sense of the exertions which it behoves them to bring to the enterprise.

The advantages already possessed by the city, in enterprise, capital and geographical position should naturally constitute it the commercial emporium of this State, if not of the entire Southern community. Little more is required, than such an enlargement of the sphere of her commerce, and expansion of her resources as may be readily attained by a judicious direction to the energies of the people, and a line of liberal policy upon the part of the State and city authorities, to render Baltimore second perhaps to only one city in the Union.

The present position of Baltimore, with a partial participation in the commerce of the west, is known to all: what it might with reason be expected to become, with the full advantages which the extension of her great work to the Ohio river, thence uniting with other connections leading throughout the Valley of the Mississippi, some estimate may be formed from the advantages conferred upon other cities by similar works, developing resources of no greater magnitude.

If the participation of New York, by means of the Erie canal, in the productions and commerce of the region of country reached by that great work, has in so short a period elevated that city to the commanding position she now occupies, it is not unreasonable to suppose that Baltimore, by means of a rail road communicating by the shortest and cheapest line with the Mississippi Valley, from the Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Allegheny to the Rocky Mountains, would derive equal if not superior advantages.

It has been observed that the chief object of the introduction of railways was the transit of merchandise; and, although in the course of their operations it has become apparent that passenger travelling will be the business of greatest value, the original design has lost none of its positive importance. On the contrary, the successful application of locomotive power, to the transportation of merchandise and heavy burthen, has satisfactorily shewn the adaptation of proper lines of railways to all the purposes of commerce. Recent improvements in the construction of the ways; in the locomotive power and in the cars and other machinery; greater economy in the cost of transportation, added to the steadiness and uniformity of their operations in all seasons of the year, and to the increased velocity easily maintained without injury to the way, have satisfactorily shewn, both in the United States and in Europe, that railways, particularly those of great length, may be profitably employed as thoroughfares both for passengers and burthen. On both sides of the Atlantic they are universally used for both purposes, and are to a great extent becoming preferred lines of communication.

Within the last twelve years little if any capital has been employed in the construction of canals, either in this country or in Europe, except, perhaps, where necessary to avoid obstructions in navigating rivers, or to unite navigable waters for the purposes of a continuous navigation; while, during the last twenty years, in constructing and perfecting a system of railways, an expenditure has been incurred, equal to, if not exceeding the cost of all the canals existing in both countries.

In England, railways have been long in use, in connection with the most extensive collieries ; and as a part of the works of the Delaware and Hudson Coal Company in New York, a railway is employed with decided advantage for the transportation of their heavy burthen.

In Great Britain, within the last twenty years upwards of three hundred millions of dollars have been expended in the construction of railways, which are used for the transportation of passengers and burthen, and, in most instances have proved extremely profitable. Within the same period, in the United States, not less than one hundred and twenty millions of dollars have been expended in similar works : and in every instance in which they have been finished and judiciously adapted to the state of trade and population, and have been economically constructed and managed—as may be said of most of the works in the New England States—they have also proved to be profitable.

On the continent of Europe, the same preference appears to prevail ; and numerous lines of railways—some with the aid of English capital, are in the process of construction in various directions, from St. Petersburg to Paris and Havre, and from the Adriatic to the Baltic. Even in Holland, railways are actually constructing in immediate proximity with the ancient canals, and are profitably used for the transportation of merchandize as well as of passengers.

If in the countries of Europe—in which the cost, both of construction and maintainance far exceeds that in the United States—these large expenditures can be justified by the demands of trade, there need be no apprehension that a railway uniting the valley of the Mississippi with the Atlantic Ocean will not accomplish all that the most sanguine may expect from it.

The reduction in the cost of transportation, which, with the aid of present improvements in the operation of railways, the facts stated in this report shew may be effected, leaves no room to doubt that, when finished to the Ohio river, the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road may be profitably adapted to all the purposes for which similar works elsewhere are used.

Of the increased facilities to be reasonably expected from future improvements in the railway system, and in science and the arts, there is no need to speak.

Happily for all who may be interested in the present condition and future prospects of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, the operations of the past year are well calculated to extend and establish the credit of the company.

The net revenue from all sources has been upwards of five per cent., being more than one per cent. greater than that of the past year ; and the road is obviously becoming the preferred thoroughfare, especially for passengers, between the East and the West. The only remaining debt owed by the company is payable in easy annual instalments, requiring less than one-fifth of the net revenue, and in a few years this obligation will be finally extinguished.

By the improvement, now nearly finished, of the Monongahela, by means of a substantial lock and dam navigation, that important river will be rendered navigable for steamers of the first class from Brownsville to Pittsburg, thereby shortening the conveyance to the western waters, by wagons and stages at least fifty nine miles, and affording new and important facilities for the travel and transportation by the rail road.

These advantages, however, afford an inadequate standard by which to judge of the enlarged business and emoluments of the road, when finished to the Ohio river.

If the resources of the western empire be not extravagantly exaggerated, a work, economically constructed and judiciously managed, which will form the shortest and cheapest communication with that important region, cannot fail to be regarded as of immense value, and speedily become a safe and attractive object both of individual and public capital. If English capital to a large amount has already sought investment in the railways constructing in France, and is even attracted by objects of a minor character in this country, it may well be tempted to the construction of the most extensive and profitable enterprise on the American continent.

From recent decisions of some of the most distinguished American Jurists, the exclusive and perpetual use of the leading lines of railways for the transportation of the mails, so indispensable to the necessary control of that department by the General Government, is not to be acquired but by voluntary arrangements with the rail road companies; and it is very obvious that upon the great western line, being already sufficiently advanced, to exclude all other competition, such control cannot be had without a liberal contribution towards its final completion.

It is also obvious that such contribution, upon a scale little exceeding the ordinary charge for mail transportation, would be nearly adequate to extend the road to the Ohio river.

In every view which may be taken of the subject, therefore, the final prosecution of the rail road, it is believed, may be fully relied upon. Some temporary delay may be looked for; and occasional obstacles, which most frequently occur in works of the greatest magnitude, are also probable; but sooner or later energy and perseverance must triumph over all.

The great interests involved in the enterprise are of too much moment, and too widely diffused to be long neglected. The work combines too many considerations, social and political, and appeals to too many of the incentives which stimulate the interest and control the conduct of individuals and states, to be long retarded.

The appreciation of its importance on this side of the Ohio, must continue to urge it forward, and the intelligence and power of the western states, cannot long remain insensible to the value of a work, which will bring them within a few days of the ocean.

When the energies of all who have a motive to carry on the enterprise, and are interested in the developments to which it is to lead are fully aroused, the means of accomplishing the object will be the least obstacle in their path. It may be asserted without exaggeration, that the new resources of the population east and west of the Ohio, which would be developed by the extension of the road; the gain in point of time in the travel and burthen passing over the line; the increased profit to the producer from the saving in the cost of reaching a market,—not to speak of the permanent value to be added to the land and to labor of all kinds, would, in a single year, amount to a sum far greater than would be necessary to complete the work.

It is considerations such as these upon which the Board rest their hopes of ultimate success; and regarding this work as one to be forever associated with the happiness and prosperity of the people, they will continue to urge it onward from every motive of pride and duty.

By order of the Board,

LOUIS McLANE, President.

REMARKS.

Besides the Tonnage transported as above, and for which the Company have received pay, there has been hauled of Materials for Repairs of Railway and Bridges, and of Fuel for Locomotive Engines, &c., equivalent to 1,035,411 Tons one mile; which amount, if added to the 7,304,468 Tons hauled one mile by Locomotives as above stated, and their sum divided by the number of miles run by Locomotives with Tonnage Trains, will shew the average net load of each Engine to have been but 21.67 Tons; which is nearly one ton less than the average of the previous year.

There have been carried over the Winchester and Potomac Rail Road, in the Cars of this Company, equivalent to 411,490 Tons one mile.

The average Number of Passengers to each train has been 54 nearly.

“ “ charge for Passengers, 3.141 cents per Passenger per mile.

“ “ “ “ Tonnage, 4.097 “ Ton “

“ “ cost for Repairs of Locomotives, 6.67 cents per mile run with trains.

For the purpose of more easy comparison with the working of other roads not subject to the expense of horse power, it may be stated that after deducting the expense of horse power in the streets of Baltimore, the cost per mile of running the trains has been 51½ cents; and that including horse power, it has been 54 8-10 cents.

The expenditures common to both Passenger and Burden Trains, have been divided in the proportions of the number of miles run by the Locomotives with Trains of each description.

JAMES MURRAY,

Engineer of Machinery and Repairs.

*These expenditures include the cost of conveying Passengers and Tonnage for the Washington Branch Road, through the street of Baltimore.

TWO REPLIES

Of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, to interrogatories propounded to the said Company by the House of Delegates of Maryland,—on the 25th of January and 10th of February, 1844.

---

On the 25th of January 1844, the House of Delegates of the State of Maryland passed the following order:

BY THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES,
January 25th, 1844.

Ordered, That the President of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company be requested to report to this house, the lowest rate of toll per ton per mile at which the company would agree to transport Coal, Iron, &c. from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, provided an arrangement be made for such transportation to last for the next two years, and also for the next twelve years, or permanently, and under such arrangement the number of tons the company will agree to transport annually;—also, whether the company would agree to lay down a second track, should the same be required; and further, to give a statement of the relative cost of transportation by means of the road and canal from Cumberland to Georgetown, and by the canal alone if finished from the same to the same; and further to state whether the rail road company would agree to take a proportion, and if so what, of the stock of a company, if incorporated, to make a rail road from Cumberland to the Frostburg mines, and further, whether the rail road company will extend their road to the Frostburg region immediately, and at what rate they will transport coal upon such extension.

By order,

GEO. G. BREWER, Clerk.

To this order, at their meeting on the first of February 1844, the Board of Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company, directed the following answer to be given, and which was accordingly on that day transmitted, viz:

Resolved, That the President transmit to the speaker of the House the following answer to the several inquiries contained in an order of the House of Delegates, passed the 25th ultimo.

1st.—That, provided a satisfactory arrangement be made within the ensuing twelve months, for the transportation of not less than 105,000 tons of coal annually, in equal daily quantities, during the canal season, assumed to be 250 days, from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, to continue for twelve years or permanently, this company will engage to transport that amount, or any greater quantity not exceeding 500,000 tons as aforesaid, between those points at  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cent per ton per mile.

2d.—That the present road with a single track, and such sidelings, to be provided, as the trade may require, being deemed sufficient to accommodate the transportation annually of at least 500,000 tons of coal between Cumberland and Dam No. 6, the company at present decline entering into an agreement to lay down a second track.

3d.—That this company decline to assert positively the lowest cost of transportation by the canal alone, if finished from Georgetown to Cumberland, but assuming such cost to be, as stated in the report of the Canal Company of the 16th of November last,  $1\frac{25}{1000}$  of a cent per ton per mile, the relative cost of transportation by means of the rail road from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, and thence by canal to Georgetown, and by the canal alone, if finished from the same to the same, will appear as follows:

|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------------------------------|
| Tolls and charges on Rail Road to Dam No. 6, 45 miles at $1\frac{1}{2}$ cent.                                        | 60                               |
| Tolls and transportation on the Canal from Dam No. 6 to Georgetown,136 miles at $1\frac{25}{1000}$ ct. per mile. | 1 70 $\frac{1}{2}$               |
|                                                                                                                      | <hr/> \$2 30 $\frac{1}{2}$ <hr/> |

The cost of transporting a ton of coal from Cumberland to Georgetown by the Canal alone, 184 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles, at the above rate of  $1\frac{25}{1000}$  ct. per ton per mile . . . . . \$2 31

4th.—That the board having been officially informed by the President of the Maryland and New York Iron and Coal Company, that he can command the funds requisite for the construction of a rail road from Cumberland up the valley of Jennings' run to the coal and iron deposits of that region, and is desirous of completing it within the shortest possible time, the company decline entering into an engagement immediately to construct a road on its own account, or to take a proportion of the stock of a company, if incorporated, to make a rail road from Cumberland to the Frostburg mines; nor do the company deem it expedient to engage immediately to extend their road to the Frostburg region.—Their operations in this respect would necessarily depend upon the state of their funds, and upon the route to the Ohio river which they may ultimately decide to adopt.

But supposing the rail road about to be constructed by the Maryland and New York Iron and Coal Company, from Cumberland up the valley of Jennings' run, to the coal and iron mines, a distance of about ten miles, to be worked in connection with the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, and with the machinery of that company, the cost of transporting coal upon such extension, and in such connection, may be stated at 20 cents per ton. But if such extension should be worked in another connection and with different machinery, the cost of such transportation, it is supposed, would be at least 10 cents greater.

5th.—The additional expense of handling, and the irregularity of loads, will not authorize a less charge of transportation for pig iron than 2 cents per ton per mile; and the transportation of manufactured iron, requiring cars of greater weight and cost in proportion to the load hauled, and greater precaution to protect it from the weather, would not justify a less charge for this article than 3 cents per ton per mile between Cumberland and Dam No. 6.

On the 10th of February 1844, the House of Delegates passed another order, as follows:

BY THE HOUSE OF DELEGATES,
February 10th, 1844.

Ordered, That the President of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company be requested to inform this House, forthwith:

1st.—What is to be understood by the terms "satisfactory arrangement," in the first answer contained in the extract from the minutes of said company recently reported to this House, and to state what sort of an arrangement said company would require to be made to ensure the transportation on the rail road, of coal from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, at  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cent per ton per mile.

2d.—Whether said company for such charge contemplates a ton of 2,000 lbs or of 2,240 lbs.

3d.—What amount of money would be necessary to provide conveyances, cars and machinery, and to construct the necessary sidelings and switches to accommodate a trade of 105,000 tons annually, between Cumberland and Dam No. 6, and what amount would be required for the same purposes to accommodate a trade of 500,000 tons annually between said points.

4th.—Whether the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road Company has means, or can obtain means to meet the expenditure that will be necessary under the last interrogatory; and if so, from whence they are derived, or expected to be derived.

5th.—Whether, in his opinion the transportation of coal from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, in the manner proposed, and at a charge of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cent per ton of 2,240 lbs. per mile, would be profitable to the rail road company.

6th.—Whether the said company, without a stipulation for an equal daily quantity, would be willing to transport coal from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, in such quantities as from time to time may be offered for transportation, and will increase its conveyances for that purpose according to the growth and requirements of the coal trade; and for what charge the said company would be willing to do so for a given length of time, and for what shortest time.

7th.—What quantity of coal was taken from Cumberland last year, other than for the use of the company, and whether all that was offered for transportation was carried when presented, or whether there was delay when other tonnage was seeking transportation, and what were the rates charged per ton of 2,240 lbs. per mile.

8th.—What is the highest ascending grade on the rail road from West to East, from Cumberland to Dam No. 6.

9th.—Why in the recent answer to the House of Delegates is it stated that upon rail roads from the coal mines to Cumberland, worked in connection with the road from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, and with the same machinery, it will cost 2 cents per ton per mile on the former, and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cent per ton per mile on the latter.

By order,

GEO. G. BREWER, Clerk.

To this, the Board, at their meeting on the 15th of the same month, directed the following answer:

OFFICE OF THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO }
RAIL ROAD COMPANY, }

February 15th, 1844.

To the Honorable,
the Speaker of the House of Delegates:

SIR:—I had the honor to receive on the 12th instant, the order of the House of Delegates passed on the 10th, and having at the earliest day practicable submitted it to the Board of Directors of this company, I am authorised to transmit the following reply.

In the first place, the board desire it should be distinctly understood that the investigation into which the House of Delegates have been led, has been without their prompting or knowledge, and that in responding to inquiries into their resources and business, which, by exposing in detail the course and results of a single branch of their operations, may possibly lead to erroneous inferences in respect to others,—without a like opportunity of explanation,—they yield only to a sense of respect due to the Legislature of the State having so deep an interest in the trade and revenues of the road. The sequel of this present answer will satisfactorily shew that the board need have no other objection to the amplest exposition of their credit and resources, and of the whole range of their transactions, on any other ground than that already indicated.

The board have at no time heretofore deemed it expedient or desirable to make expensive preparations for the transportation of any considerable amount of coal from the mines in Alleghany county. It has been quite obvious to them, as indeed they must presume it will be to all, that without the facilities of rail road communication between the mines and Cumberland, the article could not be brought to the latter point in quantities sufficient to warrant a large expenditure in providing means of transportation by any channel whatever. Up to this period the ultimate route of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road from Cumberland to the Ohio river is too indeterminate to authorise any attempt to extend it to any part of the coal region, and it is only recently that the board have seen any evidence of the existence, in any other quarter, of the capital sufficient either to construct a road to the mines, or to develop, except in a partial degree, their resources. It would be manifestly unwise in this company, or, as it may be presumed, in any authority whatever, to venture upon a large expenditure to acquire the capacity to accommodate a particular branch of trade, without at least some reasonable assurance that after the capacity should be acquired, sufficient trade would exist to employ it; and this consideration is particularly applicable to the operations of the rail road, inasmuch as the greater part of the preparations necessary for the transportation of coal would not be needed, and could not be advantageously employed in any other business.

This board, moreover, after thorough investigation of the subject in all its bearings, have placed no great confidence in the expectations founded upon the rapid and extensive development of the coal of that portion of the state. If the requisite capital for the purpose can be commanded, they have been unable to discover any evidence that the demand for consumption will be such as to authorise, on their part, at least, any great preparations for engaging in the trade. They have become convinced, on the contrary, that many years must elapse before the demand will require more than 100,000 tons in any one year, whatever facilities of transportation may be afforded. It is to be observed also that to justify the rail road company in engaging extensively in the transportation of coal, at such rates as would bring it to market upon equal terms with coal of others States, it would be necessary that the trade should be large in amount, and of certain and regular supply throughout the year; of which, up to this time certainly, there has been no satisfactory assurance. Of the capacity of the company, with those advantages, to engage in the transportation of coal, at rates extremely profitable, and at the same time so low as to exclude the apprehension of rivalry from other works,—according to any rate of charge at present known,—the board have never doubted. The estimates accompanying this answer, and the large margin of profit which they exhibit upon the terms assumed, will shew that, if the board would be content with a nett profit of six per cent. upon the capital employed, it has the capacity to engage in the trade from the mines to the city of Baltimore at rates below any other mode of transportation at present known. The indisposition of the board, therefore, heretofore to engage in the transportation of coal, has proceeded from no other apprehension than the want of certainty and regularity in the amount; and on this ground they have preferred waiting events, and to test the practicability of developments so confidently predicted by others; with entire confidence, at the same time, that if those expectations should be realized and the trade in coal become sufficiently regular and certain, they could, at any time, engage in the transportation of it to Baltimore without danger of serious competition with any other rival.

Previous to the order of the House of Delegates of the 25th of January, however, the board were officially informed by the President of the Maryland and New York Iron and Coal Company, that he had procured the requisite funds for the construction of a rail road from the works of that company to Cumberland, and was anxious for the completion of the road in the shortest possible time. The same officer also verbally communicated his desire to adopt the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road to Baltimore for the transportation of coal and iron, if this company would engage in the trade at such rates as would enable him advantageously to do so. The investigation to which this application led only confirmed the opinion of the board that they might engage in the transportation with great advantage to the stockholders, and upon terms which, considering the speed at which they could perform the business, and the superiority of the Baltimore market, he might be well content to accept. Under such circumstances, they felt an obligation not to withhold their aid from the development of the resources of that important region. The order of the House of Delegates of the 25th January, therefore, came while investigations into the practicability of arrangements for this purpose were actually in progress. A few days subsequent to the answer of the board to that order, the President of the Maryland and New York Iron and Coal Company submitted a further and specific proposition; and, it may be proper to remark, that in this proposition that company, of acknowledged means and capacity, does not appear to contemplate a greater amount of transportation than fifty-two thousand five hundred tons per annum for a period of five years, and that not of coal only, but of "Coal, Pig Iron, Bar Iron, Fire bricks, Castings and other manufactures of Iron." The object of the proposition was to ascertain the terms upon which this board would transport that amount from the mines to Baltimore, if the Maryland and New York Company would make a rail road from the mines to the depot at Cumberland, and enter into an agreement for five years to furnish a freight, for one train of cars, supposed to transport one hundred and seventy-five tons per day for three hundred days in the year.

In answer to the proposition, this board have offered to enter into an engagement to transport that amount of freight, in the manner proposed, from the mines to Baltimore, at one and one-third cent per ton per mile, a distance of one hundred and eighty-eight miles, with ten cents per ton for transportation through the streets of Baltimore; and one cent per ton per mile for one hundred and eighty-eight miles in addition upon manufactured iron, when required to be transported in house cars; the Maryland and New York Company to load and unload the cars. An official estimate, forming the basis of this offer upon the part of the company, and shewing the results of the operation, is herewith submitted, marked D.

I have now to add that, since the preparation of this reply, a communication has been received from the President of the Maryland and New York Iron and Coal Company, announcing the acceptance by that company of the foregoing offer; and stating his readiness to conclude a formal agreement to carry out the arrangement.

With these remarks, which have been deemed proper for a full understanding of the whole subject, I proceed to a more particular reply to the several questions propounded in the order of the 10th instant.

FIRST.—The terms "satisfactory arrangement" in the answer of the board of the first inst., are to be understood to require a reasonable assurance that the amount of transportation for which the company would be compelled to qualify itself, should in good faith be furnished; and with such regularity and punctuality, during the period assumed, as would authorise the board to engage in it at the low rates proposed.

If such reasonable assurance could not be given by those who may be interested in the trade, and who are seeking the means of reaching the market, it is not perceived upon what grounds they can with propriety demand a large expenditure of money for the preparation of any means of transportation.

It has already been remarked that without a rail road communication from the Frostburg mines to Cumberland, it is obviously impossible that the resources of the former can be sent forward in quantities to justify any considerable preparation of any kind; and it is not to be supposed that these works will be constructed until the market shall demand an adequate supply, and the capital be provided to meet such supply. As the basis, therefore, of any "satisfactory arrangement" contemplated in the former answer, the board would require, First, that the necessary communications from the mines to Cumberland, should be constructed; Second, that adequate capital for working the mines to the proposed extent should be provided: and Third, that responsible parties, engaged in the business, should enter into an agreement to furnish the requisite amount upon the terms and in the manner proposed. The board would take it for granted that responsible parties would not perform these things without a reasonable certainty that they would find a market for the products of their labor and capital; and until they can have such certainty they would not be justified in demanding extensive and unnecessary expenditures, of which they could not avail themselves.

SECOND.—For the charge of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cent per ton per mile, as specified in their answer of the first instant, the board contemplates a ton of 2,240 lbs.

THIRD.—In reply to this question, and in illustration of other parts of this answer, I herewith submit a report and estimate of the Superintendent of Machinery and Repairs, approved and confirmed by the Chief Engineer of the Company, marked B. From this it will appear that to provide the necessary "conveyances, cars and machinery, to accommodate a trade of 105,000 tons, annually, between Cumberland and Dam No. 6," it will require the sum of eighty-seven thousand dollars, and for additional sideling tracks at Dam No. 6, three thousand dollars, making together ninety thousand dollars; and "for the accommodation of 500,000 tons, annually, between the said points" it would require $450,000, including, of course, the previous sum of $90,000.

FOURTH.—Under other circumstances, it might be a sufficient reply to this question to state that, the company expect to derive the means to enable them to engage in the transportation they have contemplated, from those sources from which all rail road companies derive the means of maintaining their works and carrying on their trade; and that this board is quite incapable of venturing to engage in any branch of trade, without a just reliance upon their ability to fulfil their engagements. Upon the present occasion, however, the board desire to give a more particular answer.

In their annual report of October, 1842, the board stand pledged not to apply any portion of their annual revenue to the extension of the road west of Cumberland, without at least the consent of the stockholders; and, adhering to the determination to prosecute their work with the least possible delay to the Ohio river, they would deem it unwise to use any part of their funds appropriately applicable to the extension of the road, for the purpose of increasing their machinery for the accommodation of trade from the present terminus.

The trade upon the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, however, is obviously on the increase, and in the course of the next year may require some augmentation of its machinery for the accommodation of the regular and accustomed business. For this purpose, and for any new trade in which the board may decide to engage, the ordinary and legitimate resources are the credit and revenue of the company. From one of these the capital needed for the contemplated transportation of coal must be drawn, and that either will prove entirely adequate, is not to be doubted.

Of the solidity of its credit, this company has just reason to be proud; and they have the gratification to know that under its financial arrangements, the improved economy in its operations, and the continual increase in its business, its credit is daily becoming better entitled to public confidence. It has, at all times, promptly complied with its obligations to the State, and to individuals; its ability in the future is not less than in the past; and its bonds now outstanding for the debt incurred on account of the Washington Road, are in demand in the market at a premium of five per cent. If it may be assumed that capitalists will be found to advance the requisite funds for working the mines which are to yield the coal for transportation, and for the construction of the roads necessary for its conveyance to Cumberland; or if it be probable that the same facilities may be found to raise the millions, requisite to provide other channels of conveyance, not merely dependent upon the developement of the trade, but in competition, as the estimates herewith submitted shew, with a work in full operation, capable of transporting at as low a cost; the ability of this company to raise, upon its credit, some addition to its revenue, to be employed in a business certainly yielding a net annual profit of not less than 20 per cent., will scarcely be deemed less probable.

The revenue of the company, should it be proper to use it, presents a resource equally available.

The net revenue of the last year amounted to nearly $280,000, and enough is already known to authorise the presumption that for the present it will not be less than $300,000. Hence it will be clear, from the estimate already referred to, that to accommodate a coal trade of 105,000 tons per annum, from the mines to Dam No. 6, little more than four months of the net revenue will suffice; and that for the same amount of transportation from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, a much less sum will be adequate. It is to be remarked also, that upon either amount, should it be drawn from the revenue, the stockholders will annually receive nearly 20 per cent. from its new employment, and one-third per cent. upon the entire capital of $7,000,000.

Whether the board will resort to its credit or to its revenue, will depend upon the best view they may take of the interest of the stockholders, when it may become necessary to resort to either.

The conviction entertained by the board, of the progress and amount of the contemplated coal trade, if the supply for consumption should immediately require the transportation of 105,000 tons in one year, they are quite confident that, after reaching that amount, whenever that may be, the annual increase from that time, may be accommodated from the profits derived from this branch of trade. It may well be supposed, that no one can be found so sanguine as to imagine that the consumption of this coal will at the end of eight years require the annual transportation of more than 500,000 tons; and, upon this hypothesis, the statement therewith submitted, marked C, will shew that the transportation of such amount at that period, as well as previous thereto will be maintained by the profits of this single operation, without further recourse to the revenue or the credit of the company. If, however, the board should, in any degree be disappointed in these expectations,—which they by no means apprehend,—the deficiency, small as it must necessarily be, may be readily supplied from either of the sources already indicated.

FIFTH.—In reply to this question also the attention of the House of Delegates is particularly requested to the estimates already referred to, and marked B; which were taken as the basis of the previous answer of the board of the 1st instant.

These estimates and the expenses of transportation are in every instance derived from the actual experience, not only of other companies, but of this company; an experience in our operations of many years, and from their uniformity, and the economy we have been enabled to introduce, all estimates founded upon them possess, in all our calculations, the most satisfactory authority.

It is to be observed also that the principal means by which we are enabled to engage in the transportation of coal at the low rates referred to, are found; 1st, in the use of the improved heavy engine, possessing nearly triple the capacity of those formerly, and now in use by the company; 2d, in the comparative cheapness of the description of cars, and the less weight they are required to have in proportion to the load they carry: and 3d, in the amount, and regularity and punctuality of the trade.

It may, therefore, be stated that from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, a distance of 45 miles, the cost per ton per mile of transporting 105,000 tons in 250 days of canal navigation, is estimated at  $\frac{9.41}{1000}$  of a cent. If the charge be  $1\frac{1}{3}$  cent per ton per mile, the net profit will be  $\frac{3.92}{1000}$  of a cent per ton per mile; and upon 105,000 tons transported 45 miles, or 4,725,000 tons carried one mile, it would be \$18,522, being upwards of 20 per cent. upon the capital employed, and more than one per cent. upon the entire cost of the road of 45 miles used for the transportation. Upon the same quantity transported from the mines to Dam No. 6, and requiring a capital of \$102,000, the net profit would be \$23,215, being nearly 23 per cent. upon the capital employed.

It will also be observed that the expenses of transporting 105,000 tons of coal from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, include interest, at 6 per cent, upon the whole cost of machinery employed in it, as well as every other item of cost arising out of the trade; and the estimate also allows one-fourth of a cent per ton per mile for the increased wear and tear of the road due to the accession of the additional trade. Regarding this specific transportation between the said points as no part of the general trade of the road, upon which all the present expenses of working it are charged, it was deemed unjust to charge the new trade with any part of the expenses already incurred, and which would continue, although the additional trade should not be undertaken; and, therefore, it is not doubted that one-fourth of a cent per ton per mile will prove an ample allowance for the additional wear and tear it is intended to cover.

In any view, therefore, whether we regard the investment of the additional capital in the machinery alone, or in that and the road together, it is presumed that the transportation proposed will be considered "profitable."

SIXTH.—At 2 cents per ton of 2,240 lbs. per mile, the company would be willing to transport coal from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, at all times, without requiring a stipulation that it should be delivered in equal daily quantities; and would be willing to "increase its machinery for that purpose according to the growth and requirements of the coal trade; provided such trade between those points shall be equal to 50,000 tons per annum, and the company not be required to transport more than four hundred and twenty tons in one day. Or, if the trade should amount to 100,000 tons per annum, the company would transport it in the same manner, and at the same rate not exceeding 840 tons per day.

SEVENTH.—Since the opening of the road to Cumberland in November, 1842, the rate for the transportation of coal has been 2 cents per ton per mile; and until there should be greater facilities for its conveyance from the mines to Cumberland, the company did not increase its machinery for the accommodation of this trade. The whole quantity of coal, other than that for the use of the company, taken from Cumberland upon the rail road to all points amounted to 5,625 tons of 2,240 lbs.; and all that was offered for transportation was not invariably carried when presented. There was occasionally also "delay when other tonnage was seeking transportation." This was the consequence of an insufficiency of machinery to transport all articles offered for that purpose; and when it became necessary to choose between different articles presented at the same time, such as were perishable or most valuable, were preferred. Such, moreover, was the irregularity in the delivery of coal as to render its prompt transportation in many cases impracticable, even if the company had been better prepared for the trade. The limited means, during the past year, for the transportation of coal, was well known to the dealers in that article, who, without any expectation of its immediate transportation, must have delivered it with full knowledge of the risk of delay.

EIGHTH.—The highest ascending grade on the rail road, from west to east from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, is  $26\frac{4}{70}$  feet per mile.

NINTH.—In the recent answer to the House of Delegates, it is stated, that upon a rail road from the mines to Cumberland, worked in connection with the road from Cumberland to Dam No. 6, and with the same machinery, it will cost 2 cents per ton per mile on the former, and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cent per ton per mile on the latter; because the road from the mines to Cumberland is but 10 miles in length, and dependent for its revenue entirely upon the coal trade. On this account its general expenses would have to be borne entirely by that trade, inasmuch as it would derive no such aid as is yielded to the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road from the travel, and transportation of burthen, by which this road is now supported. It is, therefore, obvious that the charges cannot be the same on both roads, although worked by the same machinery, as it is supposed in the recent answer.

Of the 2 cents per ton per mile, the assumed cost on the road from the mines to Cumberland,  $1\frac{83}{1000}$  cent would be received by the Baltimore and Ohio Rail for transportation, and the remaining  $\frac{917}{1000}$  cent would belong to the proprietors of the former road; and, if the road be supposed to cost \$150,000, and the expenses of repairs and management to be at the rate of \$600 per mile per annum, it would require a trade of 163,576 tons over its entire length, in each year to pay an interest of six per cent. per annum upon the cost of construction. It might indeed be questioned whether the proprietors of a rail road from the mines to Cumberland would, for some time to come, be justified in charging so low a rate of toll as 2 cents per ton per mile, assumed in the recent answer.

I have the honor to be, sir,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

LOUIS McLANE, President.

ESTIMATES of the cost of Transporting Coal from Cumberland and from the Frostburg Mines to Dam No. 6 on the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal,—extracted from Report of the undersigned, bearing date 31st January 1844.

First.—As to the cost of transporting coal from Cumberland to Dam No. 6 by the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road, distance forty-five miles. This estimate contemplates the employment of locomotives weighing 20 tons, and of sufficient power to transport 30 cars carrying 7 tons each, or 210 tons of coal per train and that three locomotives will be required to perform the work of two, and that the season of canal navigation will continue 250 days—cars loaded in one direction only.

Estimated cost per day of train carrying 210 tons coal.

Two such trains as that above estimated (with less than which the trade could not be so economically conducted) would carry 105,000 tons of coal from Cumberland to Dam No. 6 during the 250 days of canal navigation, which at 2 cents per ton per mile, would yield a nett revenue of \$50,037 75-100.—At  $1\frac{3}{4}$  cents per ton per mile \$38,225 25-100, and at  $1\frac{1}{2}$  cents per ton per mile \$26,412 75-100.

The amount of capital requisite to procure the machinery for two such trains would be $87,000.

Second.—As to the cost of transporting coal from the mines in the vicinity of Frostburg to Dam No. 6, say 55 miles, engines, load, &c., as before. Engines working two days and laying by the third for examination. Average day's work of engines and attendants of train 73 miles.

The cost of transporting a ton of coal from Cumberland to Georgetown, by rail road to Dam No. 6 and thence by canal, will be as follows, viz:

| First. —Supposing tolls and charges upon the rail road to be $1\frac{1}{3}$ cents per ton per mile, on 45 miles would be . . .                                                                                                                     | \$0 60             |
| And supposing charges for tolls and transportation on canal to be the same as assumed by the President and Directors of the Canal Company in their report of the 16th November last, viz: 1 254-1000 cents per ton per mile, on 136 miles, would be . . . | 1 70 $\frac{1}{2}$ |

Total cost of transportation . . . \$2 30 $\frac{1}{2}$

Second.—Should the charge upon the rail road be fixed at $1\frac{1}{2}$  cents per ton per mile, add to the above . . . 07 $\frac{1}{2}$

Total cost will then be . . . $2 38

Third.—Should the charge upon the rail road be fixed at $1\frac{3}{4}$  cents per ton per mile, add the further sum of . . . 11 $\frac{1}{4}$

And the total cost will then be . . . \$2 49 $\frac{1}{4}$

Fourth.—Should the charge upon the rail road be fixed at 2 cents per ton per mile, add as before . . . 11 $\frac{1}{4}$

The total cost from Cumberland to Georgetown will then be . . . \$2 60 $\frac{1}{2}$

Fifth.—And should the road be extended to the mines, add for transportation and charges from the mines to Cumberland—say . . . 20

Making the entire cost from mines to Georgetown \$2 80 $\frac{1}{2}$

The cost of conveying a ton of coal from Cumberland to Georgetown by the canal alone, at the rate above assumed, distance \$184 $\frac{1}{2}$  miles, would be . . . \$2 31

Add to this the cost upon rail road from the mines to Cumberland, which upon a road so short as 10 miles, with no other support than that derived from the coal trade, and to be worked independently of the Baltimore and Ohio Rail Road cannot be much, if any less than 30

And we have as the cost to Georgetown, by rail road to Cumberland and thence by canal . . . $2 61

REPORT

OF THE

BALTIMORE AND SUSQUEHANNA

To Col. JACOB G. DAVIES,

Mayor of the City of Baltimore :

The President and Directors of the Baltimore and Susquehanna Rail Road Company, have the honor to submit the annexed statements of the operations of the company for the year ending on the 30th September, 1844.

The general financial condition of the company, the receipts and disbursements for the year, and the revenue and expenditures of the transportation department for the same time, are respectively shewn in the tables numbered 1, 2, and 3. The tabular appendix gives an analysis of the principal items of cost of running the trains for each mile passed over by the locomotives. On comparing these statements with those of the previous twelve months, it will be seen that during the last year there has been an increase in the number of passengers transported over the road of 14,162; and in the quantity of produce and merchandise, of 56,105,739 lbs. or 29,052 tons. The aggregate increase in the revenue from transportation is $28,620 08; and the increase in the expenditures charged to that department is $28,211 33.

The amount of trade passing over the road to and from the numerous freight lines between Columbia and Pittsburg, has been greater than at any former period, and exceeds by forty-five per cent. that of the year preceding. The actual quantity transported was,

| Total,          | - | - | 18,615 tons | 544 lbs. |

The steady increase in the trade between Baltimore and Pittsburg, over this route, is shewn by the following statement of the amount transported in each year, since the completion of the road, viz :

| Total in 6 years, -     | 59,162 tons | 1,482 lbs. |

The amount paid into the treasury of the State, during the year, on account of interest, was $20,000.

A portion of the increased expenditures of the transportation department, embrace in the items of repairs of locomotives, of cars, of road, and of bridges, cost of fuel, oil, &c., and other expenses of running trains, is strictly due to the augmented business of the road. The locomotives having run within the year 156,392 miles, or 19,587 miles more than the previous year, the aggregate cost of running trains has been greater. So also, the cost of necessary alterations to locomotives, amounted on the 1st of October, to $5,250. These alterations have been such as to change the character and class of several of the engines; and in fact to make them more efficient and better in all respects than when they were first put in operation. Had the expenditure required for this purpose not been incurred, the operations of the road could not be carried on to their present extent, without the purchase of additional motive power at a much higher cost. The cost of repairs of the road, and of cars would, however, have been, without any increase in the trade, greater last year than previously. Many of the burthen cars, from decay, required extensive repairs, and several were almost entirely rebuilt. From the decay of the sleepers or cross-ties in the road, it was necessary, to preserve the track in proper order, that a large quantity of new timber should be substituted for that which had become unsound.

Among the expenditures enumerated in table No. 2, as not properly chargeable to the transportation department, is one of $11,980 49 for new burthen cars. The call on the company to furnish cars, principally for the accommodation of the way trade, has continued to increase, in consequence of the more general use of lime for agricultural purposes, along the whole line of road and its vicinity.

For the reasons stated in their last report, the board felt bound by the provisions of the acts of the Legislature, to extend to this trade, all the accommodation in their power, although they were unwilling to take from the transportation revenue of the year, the amount required to supply the requisite number of cars. They have, therefore, had built by contract, thirteen six wheeled cars, costing $3,770, on a credit for such a length of time that the use of the cars themselves will have probably yielded to the company the entire amount of their cost, before the period will arrive of which payment for them is to be made. There have also been built twenty-four six wheeled cars at the company's depot, by the hands in their employ, who were occupied in building cars whenever not actually engaged in making repairs to cars and engines.

The cost of repairs of bridges will, it is feared, amount to a large sum during the present and succeeding years. Those over the Beaver dam and the Western run, in Baltimore county, of the spans of 80 and 100 feet respectively, were so much injured by decay of the timber, that it has already been found necessary to take them down, and entirely to rebuild them. This work is now on the eve of completion. A contract has also been made for rebuilding, in the spring, the largest bridge on the road, at the first crossing of the Gunpowder; and the timber taken from it will be used, so far as it is sound, and can be made available, in the repairs of other bridges of smaller span. In this mode the repairs of all can be most economically made; but it is apprehended that, including the work already done, the cost that will have to be incurred by the 1st of January 1846, cannot safely be estimated at less than $30,000. The payments for a part of this work, however, may, if desirable, be postponed until the spring and summer of the year eighteen hundred and forty-six. Notwithstanding, however, the foregoing anticipated expenditures during the current year, the board have reason to believe that they will be enabled before its close, to make further payments to the State, the amount of which they trust will not be less than was paid during the last. Indications are already given of a continued increase in the business of the road, the revenue of which since the 1st of October last, has considerably exceeded that received in the corresponding period of the year eighteen hundred and forty-three. The establishment of a new depot which is now making in the city by another Pittsburg Transportation Line, preparatory to the resumption of canal navigation in the spring, is one among the circumstances which give grounds for the belief that the western trade over the road will also this year, considerably exceed in amount that of the past.

Since the last annual report of the company, no work has been done on the Westminster branch of the rail road, further than to keep it in such a state of repair as to permit light passenger cars, drawn by horses, to be used on it in the summer season. The board have been unwilling to incur the expenditure that would be required to renew the superstructure throughout; and unless this were done, the track could not be made suitable for the transportation of produce and merchandise. The condition of this road continues to be a source of complaint on the part of those who would have an opportunity of benefiting by the accommodation it would, if in proper order, afford to the district of country through which it passes.

The board regret to find, that although the trade of Baltimore with the extensive regions to which the rail road to Wrightsville gives access, continues regularly to increase, it is yet far from having attained sufficient magnitude to give full and profitable employment to both the rail road and the canal from Columbia to Havre de Grace. These works have all been constructed to connect with the Pennsylvania improvements at Columbia; and the hope has been heretofore expressed, that the developement of the resources of the country for whose productions they afford avenues to market, might be so rapid, as in a short time to require them all. It is now apparent that this has not yet been the case; but the board trust they will be excused in expressing, as an act of justice to those who projected and urged to completion the Baltimore and Susquehanna Rail Road, the full conviction which is now felt, that had this remained, (as until long after it was undertaken, there was every reason to suppose it would) the only work of internal improvement connecting the city of Baltimore with the Susquehanna river, the results of the enterprise would have been as gratifying in a pecuniary, as they have been valuable in a commercial point of view.

By order of the board,

CHARLES HOWARD, President.

REPORT
OF THE
COUNSELLOR FOR THE CITY.

---

TO JACOB G. DAVIES, Esqr.,
Mayor of the City of Baltimore :

The undersigned, Counsellor of the city, respectfully reports, that of the two cases reported by his predecessor as pending before the Court of Appeals of this State: one, that against Dr. J. C. White has been dismissed by him under authority of the Resolutions No. 105, page 71, of 1844. The other against Mr. Henry White, is the only one now pending in that court; it is expected to be argued early in January, 1845. The two cases in the County Court against Messrs. Oelricks and Lurman, and Messrs. Dobbin and Saunders, mentioned by his predecessor were, as he believes, disposed off by him. The case against Mr. William G. Harrison was stricken off by the undersigned, under the authority of Resolution No. 113, page 75, of 1844. The only other two suits pending in that court at the time of his predecessors report, were those against the Equitable Insurance Company, and the Fell's Point Savings Institution. These cases have not been under his charge, as the former was deferred upon an opinion of his given before his appointment to his present office, and the other involved precisely the same principle;—they are both yet undecided, and both expected to be tried at the January term. The only new case brought upon the common law side of the County Court is a case against Mr. Seidenstricker, the late collector, for an alleged illegal distress, brought during the present year, by a Mr. Balderstone. In the case of the decree against the city at the suit of Mr. Robert Gilmor, no appeal has been taken; the case having been settled under the authority of Resolution No. 61, page 58, 1844. There is now no case in equity depending, in which the city is a party.

On the appeal docket of Baltimore county Court there are but two cases; one brought by a nightman against Mr. Jones; the nightman had acted under the authority of his superiors, and Mr. Jones refused payment, contesting that authority. It is the same question as arises in Jones against the city in the City Court, for which reason I have appeared in the case in behalf of the city. The other case is an appeal brought by the city to reverse a judgment of Mr. Justice Shaeffer in favor of a Mr. Chaney. Mr. Chaney was one of the police officers of the city, and was dismissed by the present Mayor soon after he came into the office. Mr. Chaney has been advised by respectable legal authority, that the Mayor had no right to dismiss him, because that right is exclusively vested in the High Constable by the ordinance of 1838, No. 45, sec. 4, page 112. As it is very clear to the undersigned, that the right of dismissal given to the High Constable, is not exclusive, he has advised an appeal.

There is one case on the law docket : the appeal of Robinson against the city, mentioned in the report of the late city counsellor. In this case a jury trial was prayed for the appellant, and on the trial of the case before Judge Legrand, a verdict was, under his direction, and with the general approbation of the bar, found for the city ; but a question has been reserved for the consideration of the whole court, which has not yet been argued. In the City Court the cases against Messrs. Early and Philips have been discontinued by the late counsellor, under the authority of the resolutions of the Mayor and City Council. The undersigned transmit herewith a docket of the city's cases in the City Court, furnished him by the clerk of the court. They appear to be twelve in number, but are in reality only ten. No. 2 seems to be there by mistake. No. 9 appears to have been stricken off, being one of the cases just mentioned.

There have been no other decisions by any of the superior courts touching the interests of the city ; or the construction of her powers and ordinances, except perhaps in one instance. Several warrants were brought against the city for a months wages, each by persons employed in cleaning out the harbor, alledging that they had been engaged by the month, by the person who had charge of the mud machines, under the late city commissioners. The magistrate having given judgment against the city in all the cases, appeals were, by the direction of the undersigned, and that of the late Mayor, taken to Baltimore County Court, where the judgments were affirmed. The principle of law supposed to be settled in these cases is, that the officers of the corporation while ever they continue in office, have power to bind the city by contracts within the ordinary scope of their authority. The counsellor for the city takes the liberty of saying, that he never doubted this as a proposition of law, and took the appeals upon the supposition that their existed facts in these particular cases which would shew that the men had been fraudently employed when there was no occasion for their services, or at least out of their known and usual course of business. This view of the facts was not sustained by the evidence. No notice in his own judgment need have been taken in this report of these cases, but as they have been by some persons supposed to decide a principle, he has thought it better to mention them. Two decisions by justices of the peace ought perhaps to be mentioned. Under the ordinance No. 15, 1844, page 18, a warrant was issued against Mr. B. J. Cohen for refusing to permit his office to be numbered ; the magistrate, Mr. McDonald, sustained the ordinance, and the defendant appealed ; the case is now in the city

Court. One of the judges of election at the presidential election warranted the city before justice Shaeffer for two dollars a day pay, under ordinance No. 2, page 9, of 1838. The magistrate gave judgment against the city, but the sum being too small for an appeal, none could be taken, although the opinion of the undersigned is very strong that the ordinance relates only to "elections for corporation purposes."

HUGH DAVEY EVANS,
Counsellor for the city of Baltimore.

December 28, 1844.

REPORT
CITY COMMISSIONERS.

---

CITY COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE,
Baltimore, January 3d, 1845.

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore :

GENTLEMEN,

In obedience to the requisitions of the Ordinance appointing City Commissioners and Port Wardens, and prescribing their duties, approved May 22d 1838, we have the honor to lay before you the following report of our proceedings as City Commissioners for the past year, and for a view of the expenditures made by us respectfully refer you to the accompanying abstract marked A.

The appropriations made by the last Council were generally sufficient to carry out the laudable objects had in view; those however which related to the repairs of Belvidere bridge; to the paving of the side walk on the west side of Fells' Point Fountain, and to the erection of Dams in Harford run were insufficient for the purposes intended. With regard to Belvidere bridge, we have to observe, that, after stripping it, we found the arches in such a dilapidated condition, that, it was evident, without thorough repair, the whole structure would fall in a few months. With the view of preventing such a disaster, we secured the heels of the arches by letting in substantial cast iron plates, which were so effectually bolted as to render the bridge as strong, if not stronger, than it was when first erected. The entire main floor being worn out we found it necessary to renew it. In the course of making which repairs, discovering that the appropriation would become exhausted before their completion, we reported to the then Mayor the precise condition of the remainder of the bridge, its side walks being so decayed as to render it imminently hazardous to pass; and as there was no other crossing place at that point of Jones' Falls, and the travel being great, it was deemed too important a thoroughfare to be dispensed with, the Mayor, therefore, directed us to proceed and make all necessary repairs, under the anticipated reliance that the Council would, at its next session, make an appropriation to cover the excess of expenditure, $666 20 cents, which remains unpaid. Before stripping the bridge, it was impossible to make any accurate estimate of the probable cost of the repairs which might be required, and hence it is, that the one made by our predecessors, fell short of the actual sum requisite for that purpose.

With respect to the four Dams directed to be constructed in Harford Run, and the pavement on the side walk on the west side of the Eastern Fountain, we found the appropriations, respectively, inadequate to cover the cost of the contemplated improvements, and, therefore, felt it consonant with our views of duty, and to the interest of the city, not to commence either work, believing that as the necessity for the execution of them was not very urgent, that it would be better to leave the future action thereon to the wisdom of the Council at its next annual session, than to commence those works without the means of completing them.

We have the honor to report, that during the past season the public streets, lanes and alleys have been very thoroughly repaired, the curb stones reset and the gutters turned out, and it gives us pleasure to add, that these improvements, so essential to the comfort of our fellow citizens, have been effected at an expense to the city considerably within the appropriation.

The appropriation for the repairs of bridges has been within a small amount expended; and we deem it our duty to state that, owing to the large number of wooden structures within the limits of direct taxation, we consider it would be consistent with true economy to increase this appropriation, as, for want of means, we were compelled to make the repairs, in some instances, but partial, a proceeding not to be commended in structures so perishable as are wooden bridges, when it is to be recollected that the city is answerable for damages in cases of accidents arising out of their bad condition. In connection with this subject, we beg leave to state for the information of the Council, that the three inch oak plank purchased in 1842, under a resolution of the Council of that year, has all been consumed, and would respectfully suggest the propriety of making an annual appropriation for a similar object, as it is difficult to get plank for bridge purposes of proper length and thickness, and consequent loss and waste ensues.

We found ourselves unable to have the head of Smith's dock cleaned out agreeably to the directions of resolution No. 73, approved March 22d 1844, owing to the fact of Mr. Hankey being a yearly tenant, but to avoid a like inconvenience in future, under the advice of the Counsellor to the city, we served him with a notice to quit rent on the expiration of his present year—when the pier should be removed, as its erection creates a great nuisance, and is otherwise injurious to the pecuniary interests of the city.

The information required by Resolution No. 149, approved April 20, 1844, relative to the cost of certain property on the north side of Hanover Market House, and that of certain property on the west side of said Market House as far as Sharp street, we have obtained, the estimates of which, together with a plot of the property required, is herewith transmitted.

The repairs of Hughes' street, as directed under resolution No. 43, approved March 11, 1844, were made early in the Spring, and we are pleased to be able to add, that the street is still in good condition.—But we will ask leave to recommend that a small appropriation should be made, to be expended early in the ensuing spring in extending the fence along the banks, as such precaution would relieve the city from an annual burthen.

New Fire Plugs were erected the past season at the following places, viz :

One at the corner of Second street and Exchange alley.

One at the corner of Pearl street and Peach alley,—and

One at the corner of Hanover and Hill streets,—and agreeably to the directions of resolution No. 119, we caused the fire plug to be removed from the intersection of Charles and Balderston streets to the Union Fire Company's Engine House.

The General Government having yielded its consent to the Lazaretto being appropriated for the purpose of accommodating Small Pox patients, rendered the purchase of a lot for the erection of a Hospital, under Resolution No. 124, unnecessary, agreeably to the stipulations of said resolution.

The Resolution No. 130, directing us to prepare plans for the erection of a City Hall, Watch House and Police Office, on the city property in South Gay street, we have not been able to carry into effect, from the want of time and means to procure the necessary information, the last Council having omitted to make any appropriation for that purpose.

As the last Council made no appropriation to carry the objects of Resolution No. 133, relative to Jones' Spring fully into effect, we were only able to ascertain that the proprietors are willing to sell the property to the city; they would not however fix upon any price, but will take whatever sum two arbitrators, one to be appointed by them, and the other by the city, may determine to be its value.

The Battle Monument, under resolution No. 60, approved the 15th of March 1844, was repaired; but an accident subsequently occurring, in the breaking of one of the marble posts and lamp irons, we proceeded, by the direction of the Mayor, to have the repairs made, which will cost about 85 dollars, for which an appropriation will have to be made.

Resolutions Nos. 26 and 52, relative to Chatsworth Run; resolution No. 103, relative to the sale of the materials of the Union Engine House; resolution No. 106, relative to the repairs of the Eastern Fountain; resolution No. 138, relative to Franklin square; resolution No. 139, relative to the fence around the public square on Loudenslager's hill; resolution No. 167, relative to repairs of the street at the east end of Gay street bridge; resolution No. 44, relative to the wall on Harford run from Wilk to Fleet street; resolution No.

146, relative to the repairs of Hanover Market House ; resolution No. 69 for the grading and paving of Richmond market, and No. 137, relative to the Vine street sewer, have all been carried into effect.

In consequence of an application being in progress for the paving of Cross street, the money appropriated by Resolution No. 104, was not expended.

Resolution No. 150, relative to the repairs of the wall of Jones' Falls, we did not carry into effect, in consequence of the ground in front having been tenanted ; and upon an examination late in the fall, when the tide had become low, we found the wall in much better condition than had been presumed. It will, with very slight repairs, last for several years.

We would respectfully suggest that the amount raised for the repairs of highways and bridges without the limits of direct taxation, is entirely too small to keep them in good order. Many of them have been for a long time, and are now, in very bad condition, and we would in deference submit the inquiry whether the interests of the city and comfort and convenience of the community, would not be promoted by increasing the amount raised by tax for that purpose.

All which is respectfully submitted.

JNO. N. MURPHY,

GEO. A. DAVIS,

JOHN IJAMS,

PORT WARDENS' REPORT.

---

CITY COMMISSIONERS' OFFICE,
Baltimore, January 3d, 1844.

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council :

GENTLEMEN,

We beg leave to make the following report of our proceedings as Port Wardens.

Before being able to commence operations in the harbor, owing to their decayed condition, we found it absolutely necessary to rebuild one of the discharging machines ; to make considerable repairs to the steam dredging machine, and slight repairs to the other machines, involving an extra expenditure of about eighteen hundred dollars. As soon as the repairs were completed, all the machines were set to work, and kept entirely engaged in deepening the harbor, until the 13th day of November, when, owing to the appropriation proper being nearly exhausted, the machines were laid up for the season, as we were unwilling to exceed in our expenditures the annual appropriation, although, we could, under the ordinance of 1839, have drawn upon the collections for work which had been done by the mud machines, amounting to $3,783 37½ cents. Thus influenced, and deferring to the judgment of the council by whom the appropriation had been made, we deemed it best to communicate with his honor the Mayor, through whom and the Register, we effected an arrangement in their individual capacities, by which we procured a credit of $2,000 ; but have only had occasion to use $1,301 07 cents ; after deducting which, it will still leave $2,221 44 cents undrawn, the receipts of this office being added. To cover the amount thus drawn, an appropriation will be required to refund the same to Jesse Hunt, Esq.

Since laying up the machinery, we have been enabled to employ a portion of the hands, and the horses and carts, in removing and spreading the dirt from the wharves.

It gives us pleasure to inform the honorable the Council that the depth of water maintained in the harbor is as good as it has been for many years.

Great inconvenience and loss is experienced from the want of a proper place for the deposit of the sediment raised from the harbor, and as the city owns 90 feet on the Port Wardens' line, northwesterly from the termination of the Fish House wharf, we would most respectfully recommend that an appropriation should be early made to have the same piled and logged, in order that it may be used as a place of deposit the coming season, and that other property be procured, piled, and logged, at as early a period as practicable, to be used for a similar purpose.

Of the present condition of the several machines, we would remark, that one of the two horse dredging machines has been hauled up on the ways, being in a very decayed condition, and will require to be rebuilt: that the steamer is undergoing extensive repairs, having been found to be too leaky for service, and the sides requiring graving and caulking. The machinery of the incline plane will require being partially renewed. One of the discharging machines is also very much decayed, and should be subjected to thorough repairs, as it would not be safe to trust her in the harbor another season in her present condition.

The resolutions relative to Albemarle dock, Lancaster street bridge and Pratt street wharf, at its intersection with Light street have been severally carried into effect.

We have collected and paid over to the register, during the season, for work done by the mud machines, in deepening private docks, $3,783 37½ cents, portions of which were for the years 1840, 1841, 1842 and 1843.

We sold scrap iron and other useless articles, amounting to the sum of $226 91½ cents, which was paid over to the register, and will appear in our abstract marked B.

All which is respectfully submitted.

JNO. N. MURPHY,

GEO. A. DAVIS,

JOHN IJAMS,

REPORT
OF THE
COMMISSIONERS OF HEALTH.

---

HEALTH OFFICE,
Baltimore, December 31, 1844.

To the Honorable the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore :

GENTLEMEN :

In conformity with the requisition of the forty-third section of an ordinance, approved May 22d, 1838, we have the honor to transmit herewith, statements of the disbursements made by us, of the several appropriations committed to our charge, and to respectfully make such suggestions and remarks as appear to us to be called for by the occasion.

As will appear by the annual report of interments for the year just passed, under the blessing of Divine Providence, our city has been peculiarly favored with exemption from all malignant and contagious diseases, and it is a source of gratification to us to report, that the increase in the number of deaths of the present year, over that of the last, is not greater than was to have been expected from our growing population.

We have paid due attention to the Public Springs, and used the necessary means to prevent injury to the water.

It gives us pleasure to be able to state that the public streets, lanes and alleys, have been generally kept in good order throughout the season, and that whenever any relaxations of vigilance have occurred, which were but seldom, that we have promptly applied the proper correctives, and always, with a single exception, with the best effects.

As the system of cleaning the streets by contract was an experiment, looking to economy, we felt it to be our imperative duty to give to it all proper care and attention, in order that it should be fairly tested ; and, after the experience of the past season, we have no hesitation in saying that, besides being the cheapest, it is the best plan by which the streets have yet been cleaned, and we have as little hesitation in affirming, that they have, in no previous year, within our experience, been kept in better condition.

In the commencement of our operations in the spring, we had difficulty with the contractors for the first district. Our personal observation and inspection, as well as the repeated complaints made at this office, soon convinced us that the necessary attention was not paid to keep the streets, lanes and alleys in that district in satisfactory order; and after frequent, but ineffectual admonitions, having first obtained the opinion of the counsellor to the city, and the approbation of the Mayor, on the 13th day of June we caused a legal notice to be served on said contractors annulling the contract. From that period the streets in that district have been cleaned by hands employed by us, under the superintendence of Mr. Joseph F. Krager, and we are gratified to say, that since that time they have been kept in a cleanly condition; and we are the more gratified in being able to add, that, after deducting the actual and accruing receipts from the sales of the street dirt, the increase in the cost will be so trifling, if any, as not to be worthy of consideration. Indeed, we believe that the balance due for manure already sold, and that which is accumulating, when added to the undrawn balance of $997 52½ cents, will more than pay the demands under the system up to the first of March next, when the contract will expire. Before exercising the power granted us under the 6th section of ordinance No. 5, approved March 1, 1844, we used all the means within our power to bring the contractors to a sense of duty, and it was only when we despaired of so doing, that we annulled their contract; and that they were aware of the propriety of our action, will appear evident from the tenor of their receipt for the last payment made to them, of record in this office.

Up to the 31st December, our receipts for street dirt have been $540. Of this amount, $262 50 cents were the proceeds of sales in the first district since the 13th of June last, the remainder due by two individuals the preceding year.

As the abolition of the Board of Health, at the last session of the Council, and the developement of the duties theretofore performed by it, upon this board, was, like the change in the system of cleaning the streets, an experiment, it may be expected that we should communicate to the Mayor and Council our opinion of its adaptation to the object had in view by its founders, and under that impression we will proceed to give the results of our experience. In common with many others, on entering upon the discharge of the duties of the health department, we had our misgivings as to the successful working of the new system; but resolutely determined, that, if it failed, it should not be owing to any want of energy on our part, and that if an honest direction of our exertions to carry it into successful operation could secure that end, that those exertions should be zealously given. Independently of the obligations of duty, we were animated by the desire of doing all that in our power laid, of carrying the laudable intention of economy of the last Council into effect, and thereby contribute in our humble sphere, to the lessening of the burthens of taxation upon our fellow citizens. In the execution of the duties of the health department, we have been very essentially aided by the efficient services of the High Constable, Deputy High Constable and police officers—which officers were made by the reform bill, auxiliaries to this board, and we discharge but an act of sheer justice in declaring, that the success of the experiment is largely indebted to the prompt and cheerful co-operation which we have at all times, received from that branch of the city government. Although our duties as City Commissioners and Port Wardens have been heavy during the past season, and required much time and labor, those which we discharged in the health department have been infinitely greater than have been performed in more than twice the time during the preceding two years. And when we are borne out by our records, in making this declaration, we may be permitted to observe, that the experiment has worked well, and fully justified the most sanguine expectations formed of it by its friends and supporters.

It is obvious to us, independent of the saving to the tax payers, by the present organization, that the business of the health department, under the superintendence of the commissioners, through the aid of the fourteen police officers, can be better attended to, than it was when the whole duty was confined to three Commissioners of Health, as those police officers can, in their usual daily rounds, make the necessary examinations of premises without its materially interfering with their police duties—and as fourteen men are competent to perform more physical exertion than three, it follows, as a natural consequence, that the interests of the community will be better subserved by the present than under the old system. Reasoning and thinking thus, we venture to submit our suggestions to your consideration, in the confident belief, that it will receive from your enlightened minds every attention to which it may be entitled.

In reviewing the operations of our departments for the past year, we can perceive but one improvement that should be made, and that is, the appointment of an additional clerk. The duties of the office are more than can be advantageously performed by any single individual, however competent, or patient of toil, he may be ; for the success of all legal proceedings which may be instituted, for non-compliance with the requisitions made in either branch of our executive duties, will mainly depend upon the faithfulness and intelligence with which the record shall have been made up.

On coming into office in March last, we found the charge for the conveyance of vagrants and paupers to the Alms House a very heavy tax upon the city treasury, and that the plan was liable to great abuse. In the month of July we received a proposition from the Trustees of the Poor inviting a change, and being desirous of relieving the city treasury from an imposition so onerous, we consulted with the then Mayor upon the subject. Aided by his counsel, and justified by his sanction, we made an arrangement by which the paupers and vagrants are, twice a day, conveyed in a carriage belonging to the city, to the Alms House. By which arrangement, a very material saving will be annually made. This arrangement did not commence until the 16th day of July last. By the abstract of monthly expenditures herewith transmitted marked A, you will perceive that so soon as the new plan had time to operate, that its results were as salutary as could be desired. Of the sum of $483 25 cents disbursed in the conveyance of paupers and vagrants to the Alms House, $135 50 cents were paid by the late Board of Health, in the months of January and February last; and on coming into office we found there were considerable outstanding claims for the conveyance of paupers unsatisfied. These were all paid, and served to swell the aggregate of our first months disbursements. There are instances where persons, who are brought to the Police office to be sent to the Alms House, are in too precarious and delicate a situation to await the arrival of the carriage from that institution—to meet such instances we gave orders to the High Constable and deputy, to use their own discretion in the employment of extra conveyances—and, in some extreme instances of suffering, we have authorized the procurement of refreshments. Of such character are the disbursements for the last few months,—and the smallness of the amounts, thus expended, show how wisely the discretion granted to these officers have been used.

We were the more anxious to lessen the burthen upon city treasury arising from this source, because, on examination of the city ordinances, we found there was no delegated authority for said disbursements, and that they rested solely on the law of custom—a law which, in our view, we considered “more honored in the breach than in the observance”—as safety is only to be found where the expenditures of the public money are guarded by salutary enactments, and should never, except in cases of extreme exigency, be made without the authority of law.

Of the probable saving to the city, we are not prepared to speak with certainty, but we believe it will be in all future time fully seventy-five per cent, as the driver, horse, and vehicle employed, do not cause any material additional expense to the Alms House, and the actual time employed is the only proper charge upon the city, which charge can bear no comparison with the large amount it has heretofore cost the city for this service.

All which is respectfully submitted.

The increase of expenditure on the part of the city is $2,160 71 more than last year, ending December 31st 1843, whilst the average number of paupers has increased, and of the debts incurred during the year, but a small proportion remain unpaid, except that due to Mr. Jesse Slingsluff, for 300 cords of oak wood, and which according to contract is to be paid for in the spring of 1845. It is judged proper also to state that a considerable amount of wood, coal, &c., remain on hand, and that the house has been provided with two new steam boilers, a large additional quantity of clothing, coverlids, &c., for which reason the trustees believe that a sum equal to that expended, during the present, will be fully sufficient to meet the expenses of the ensuing year, and would, therefore, ask for an appropriation of $18,000 00. During the past summer, it was deemed expedient to change the diet of the house, not only with a view to promote the health of the inmates, but as an act of justice to the laboring hands, and although the measure made it necessary to increase the amount of purchases, the result has proved that more labor has been performed by the paupers, and, that in every respect the expectations of the trustees have been fully realised.

About the same time also, the mode of conveying paupers to the Alms House was altered, and it is believed with great benefit to the institution. All vagrants committed by magistrates and many infirm paupers, had cost the city $1 each for conveyance, and the trustees believing that in many instances gross impositions had been practised, resolved, with the consent of the Mayor, to send a carriage twice daily to the police office for the transportation of these classes of individuals, and by reference to the annexed tables, it will be seen, that not only has the expenses been saved, but that the number of admissions, each month since September, has been less than in the corresponding periods of last year, a result attributed entirely to the adoption of this measure.

Since the last annual report, several valuable improvements have been made upon the premises, among which may be mentioned a large basin for the fountain in front of the main building; a sewer 250 feet in length; a straw barrack adjoining the mill 90 feet long and 40 wide, capable of containing from 60 to 70 tons of straw; a piggery 53 feet in length and 16 in width, to which is attached a yard, 40 feet square, well paved, and all built of stone; connected with this piggery, a house 30 feet by 12 has been erected to receive the slops which are constantly accumulating, and which by the aid of a steam boiler, may be converted into a valuable food for the hogs.

There has also been erected on the foundation of an old building, stabling sufficient for 24 cows and 12 horses, which is also of stone, and measures 157 feet long and 19 wide, and having an upper story to contain about 20 tons of hay, so that the stacking will be unnecessary as well as exposure to inclement weather—a large proportion of this work has been done by paupers.

There are several subjects connected with the institution, to which the trustees would call your serious attention, believing that the laws in relation thereto, ought to be repealed, or materially modified.

By act of Assembly, passed November 1773, chapter 30, entitled an act for the relief of the poor within the county of Baltimore, it is enacted that there shall be an Alms and Work House, erected, "built and set up in the said county," and by section 19 of the same act, any one magistrate is authorised to commit disorderly persons to the said work house for a limited period of time, and not only the original act, but others passed subsequent thereto, all contemplate the erection of such a building in connection with the Alms House; this has never been carried into effect; a large number of vagrants, and disorderly persons, by virtue of this act, have been committed, and the consequence is, not only that the virtuous poor are compelled to mix indiscriminately with the vicious and depraved, but the majority of the latter class are received in a most abject and offensive condition, and when restored to health and provided with good and sufficient clothing, embrace the earliest opportunity to elope. By reference to another part of this report, it will be seen, that the number of elopements, during the year were 785, and the execution of all the police regulations being vested in the overseer and matron, without any assistance other than that derived from paupers, few of whom, if any, can be trusted, it will be at once perceived that this is an inevitable result.

Again it will be observed, that of the whole number (1493) admitted into the Alms House during the year, 532 (more than one third) were born out of the limits of the United States, and that 307 had resided for less than one year in the city or county of Baltimore.— Another class of paupers maintained in the Alms House, at the expense of the city and county, is made up of strangers from the several counties of the state, as well as from other states of the union, and it is respectfully suggested, whether such measures ought not to be provided as will prevent a necessity for such unjust taxation hereafter.

The situation of the lunatic poor, also requires consideration ; there is no part of the institution which can be adapted to render them even comfortable, and although every kindness and care, which the situation admits of has been extended to them, yet under the circumstances, a cure is utterly hopeless ; it is, therefore, earnestly recommended that an application be made to the Legislature for the passage of a law, providing for the maintenance of all the lunatic poor of the state in some institution specially designed for the reception of this class of unfortunate persons, and that, the expense be charged to the cities or counties to which they may respectively belong.

The trustees are also of opinion, that the interests of the institution imperiously require, that the laws relating to the appointment of trustees, be so amended as that the tenure of office of all will not expire at the same time.

In conclusion, it is but an act of justice to say, that the overseer and all the officers of the institution, have discharged their respective duties to the entire satisfaction of the board.

The table marked A, will show the number of persons, admitted, born, &c.

The table marked B, will show the birth places of the inmates.

The table marked C, will show the ages of the inmates.

The table marked D, will show the period of residence.

The table marked E, will show the habits of the inmates.

The table marked F, will show the quantity of clothing issued.

The table marked G, will show the work done by the inmates.

The table marked H, will show the monthly average.

The table marked I, will show the articles purchased.

The table marked K, will show the products of the farm.

The table marked L, will show the extra work done on farm.

The table marked M, will show the number of medical and surgical cases treated in the house.

The table marked N, will show the number in the house, and expenses of the same, for the last eleven years, for the city and county respectively.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

Baltimore City and County Alms House:

The subscribers, in handing you the annual report, feel gratified to find the general bill of mortality less than that of the previous year, notwithstanding the admissions are larger. This pleasing result is not claimed, however, as the effect of skillful practice, for the calls of humanity have been responded to in a most gratifying and useful manner throughout the establishment. But the management of the children's department merits particular comment. The change of diet, exercise, &c. recommended and observed during the heat of summer was well calculated to lessen mortality and ward off disease. The good effects of the course adopted were soon manifested. The records prove that in July, August and September, 1843, sixteen children died, and only five during the corresponding period of the past year.

We hope the benefits thus shown to accrue among the most interesting and innocent portion of the inmates would alone be regarded as a sufficient return for the slight additional cost and trouble encountered.

Respectfully,

ALEX. CLENDINEN,

ALEX. C. ROBINSON,

Visiting Physicians.

THE VISITORS OF THE JAIL
BALTIMORE CITY AND COUNTY.

---

To the Mayor and City Council of Baltimore :

GENTLEMEN,

In obedience to the provisions of an act of the General Assembly, passed at December session 1831, chapter 58, the Board of Visitors of the Jail of Baltimore city and county present their annual report.

The receipts and expenditures for the year, beginning the 27th of November 1843, and ending the 26th November 1844, are stated in the annexed account of the Warden, marked A.

The daily number of prisoners, averaging the number committed and the number remaining in jail each morning, is 120.

We herewith hand you a statistical table, marked B, which shows the number of prisoners committed (2006) and the offences with which they were charged ; also a table marked C, which shows the monthly or daily average number of prisoners in jail each morning, and the daily costs of subsistence of the average number committed and those in jail each morning, likewise a table marked D, which shows the number of debtors and other prisoners committed, how they were discharged, and how many remained in jail, &c.

Owing to the large increased number of prisoners, the expenses have proportionably increased during the present year. You will please appropriate $5000 as the city's proportion of the expenses for the ensuing year.

By reference to the last annual report, it will be seen, that of the appropriation for the year 1843, there remained undrawn in the hands of the City Register $1000 in consequence of said amount not having been paid to the former or present Warden, but was by the Register passed to the credit of the general fund of the city; it has been found necessary to draw for the whole amount of this years appropriation of $5000, and after paying the expenses for the current year, leaves a balance in hand of $894 06.

We would again respectfully call your attention to the necessity of a house of refuge, wherein juvenile offenders against the laws may be confined until reclaimed.

We are happy to state, that during the present year, the prison under the care and management of Mr. Daniel Steever, Warden, and assistants, has been kept in as good condition as at any former period.

The report of the attending Physician, Dr. Dion Downs, shows that during the present year he has had under his care 779 patients, none of which have died.

Upon reference to the accompanying tables, you will perceive gentlemen, that great economy has characterised the financial affairs of the jail during the past year.

Respectfully submitted,

THOS. KELSO,
WILLIAM GRUBB,
EM'L T. J. WOODWARD,
ELI LILLY,
JOHN B. HOLMES,
